KSU Defendants Win; Appeals Set

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal jury has ruled the 1970 Kent State University shootings did not result from malice or negligence of Ohio National Guardsmen, but the shooting victims vowed to fight another day in court.

The decision Wednesday cleared Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, former Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso, ex-Brig. Gen. Robert H. Canterbury and then-Kent State President Robert I. White of personal liability in the incident.

The panel of six men and six women similarly declined to find 25 lower-ranking Guard officers and enlisted men financially responsible.

"The last day of the Kent trial has not occurred," responded Joseph Kelnor, lead attorney for the victims. He asked the court for a directed verdict in the victims' favor despite the jury's judgment.

The New York City attorney said the plaintiffs' evidence was overwhelming and that the trial was conducted in an atmosphere of prejudice. He predicted the jury's determination would be reversed by a higher court.

U.S. District Court Judge Don J. Young directed him to put the motion in writing.

The verdicts in favor of all the defendants and against each plaintiff were read amidst muffled sobs from the mothers of the slain students and cries of outrage from the young men wounded.

Del Corso and then Lt. Col. Charles R. Fassinger, the only defendants present, and the defense attorneys heard the verdicts with stony faces and downcast eyes.

The jury's determination came in the 15th week of trial and after 33 hours of deliberation. A poll of the jurors showed the vote was nine to three, the minimum required for a finding.

The $46 million damages suit stemmed from a clash five years earlier between guardsmen and students.

Four students were killed and nine injured in a 13-second volley from guardsmen's weapons as the troops attempted to disperse a campus anti-war rally May 4, 1970. The wounded and parents of the dead brought the legal action.

Rhodes ordered the troops to Kent during a weekend of rioting sparked by then-President Richard Nixon's announcement of U.S. military activity in Cambodia. The guardsmen arrived just as demonstrators burned the campus Reserve Officers Training Corps building.

Neither the judge nor the defendants considered the verdict final.

Young said he believed the issue had been settled, but acknowledged that "there are loose ends to be tied up." He said he could not predict the outcome of the appeals he believed were sure to follow.

Rhodes refused to discuss the case "until the time for all appeals has expired."

But attorney Charles E. Brown, one of two lead lawyers for the defense, said the jury had answered a question of fact and that an appellate court would address itself to questions of law.

The victims sought to persuade the jury that the students had been deprived of their constitutional rights to free speech and peaceable assembly and the guarantee they could not be punished without due process of law. The plaintiffs also sought damages under state assault and battery or negligence statutes.

The defendants replied the state officials were immune to damages suits stemming from actions taken as public officials, that the troops fired to defend themselves from a charging, rock-throwing mob and that the students contributed to their own injuries by failing to heed warnings to disperse.

Arthur Krause, who lost his daughter Allison in the gunfire, said the whole five-year legal effort had been to force Rhodes and the other defendants to take the witness stand and defend their actions.

The other lead defense attorney, Burt J. Fulton, said after the verdict that the guardsmen "stood up there and told their story, and that jury just believed them."

The outbursts from the plaintiffs began as the court clerk droned for the third time, "We the jury, on the issues joined, find in favor of all the defendants...."

Sarah Scheuer, mother of Sandra Scheuer who was shot fatally through the neck, broke out in sobs.

At the reading of the verdict against him, plaintiff Thomas Grace shouted, "He's still a murderer." It was not known to whom he was referring.

Alan Canfora, shot through the right wrist, called the verdict against him "an outrage." He said, "There's no justice."

The shouts prompted the judge to warn the plaintiffs that U.S. marshals would remove them if the outbursts continued.

The following verdict came against Dean Kahler, who listened silently from his wheelchair. His mother,

Elaine, sobbed. A male voice added, "My God."

Kahler has been paralyzed from the waist down since the shootings.

A foot-stomping, hand-clapping roar of approval from the spectators gallery followed Kelnor's motion that the judge set aside the jury's decision. The attorney said he wanted no such support, but added it was "a sad day for American justice."

Young dismissed the jury with the thanks of their country, saying no other legal or legislative body could have resolved the issues.

"The real questions in this case go to the very depths of civil government," the 65-year-old Toledo jurist said. "I know from your verdict you have plumbed those depths."

As the jury filed past the plaintiffs, Grace called out, "We don't blame you, we blame this rotten system."

A marshal escorted each juror home. The judge had ordered the jury sequestered under armed guard at a downtown hotel during the last week of the trial after one member was assaulted.

Israeli-Egyptian Accord Readied For Final OKs

JERUSALEM (AP) — Most of the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement is settled, a senior American official reports, and the pact may be initiated by the two governments Sunday or

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned to Jerusalem from Alexandria on Wednesday night for more talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the rest of the Israeli negotiating team. The American official said a few clauses "of at least symbolic significance" remained.

"We are continuing to move forward," Kissinger told reporters after a two-hour meeting with the Israelis Wednesday night. "The number of issues that remain are relatively small ... There are problems of details of some significance."

U.S. sources said one point still to be settled is the precise number of American-manned electronic surveillance posts to be stationed around the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes to give warning of military operations once Israel has pulled back to a new defense line.

Israel originally sought about six posts, but has now limited its demand to two or three. In addition, the Israelis and Americans would operate a post on the Egyptian side of the Gidi pass while the Egyptians and Americans would man one on the Israeli side.

Israel is insisting on the presence of the Americans to avert a recurrence of Egypt's expulsion of the United Nations buffer force in the Sinai Desert just before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Under the new agreement, the U.S. staff would be removed only if both Israel and Egypt approved.

Subject to congressional approval, the posts would be manned by a total of about 100 American technicians armed with sidearms, U.S. sources said. They would be recruited from private industry and from former employees of the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency, the sources said.

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres told a meeting of the ruling Labor party "almost American involvement" would result from the new agreement. Rabin told the same meeting that Israel could defend its new defense line with the troops it now has.

The major points of the pact already worked out include Israeli withdrawal from the passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfields; return of the oilfields and the former U.N. buffer zone to Egypt and a new U.N. buffer zone made up of the other territory Israel is relinquishing.

Both governments will renounce the use or threat of force for more than three years. Egypt will allow Israeli cargo through the Suez Canal, and the United States will pledge economic and military aid for Israel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is meeting with 16 governors on ways to ease an expected natural gas shortage which could affect residential consumers and small businesses this winter for the first time.

A White House spokesman said Ford wants to discuss with the governors today how severely their states might be affected as well as possible options for alleviating the shortage.

The President is expected to call for voluntary conservation policies by the states and to consider various legislative moves the government and the states might make. The spokesman said, "There is not a great deal the President can do administratively."

Ford also may urge support for legislation to end federal regulation of wellhead prices of new natural gas supplies. Under the plan, gas now flowing into interstate commerce would be deregulated as existing contracts expire.

Under the administration-sponsored legislation, interstate pipeline operators would be free to pay much more to producers to bid new gas away from unregulated intrastate consumers, chiefly in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico.

Natural gas sold interstate is regulated at 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. Intrastate sales go as high as $1.50.

The President and his advisers contend that deregulation is the best way to shift more gas to industry and homes in the upper Midwest, Northeast and Southeast where shortages are expected.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb also reportedly may recommend that the President seek standby authority for the Federal Power Commission to divert intrastate gas to interstate markets in any national emergency.

Gas-short states whose governors are attending are New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, Iowa, Kentucky and Delaware. The governors of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana are invited because their states are major natural gas producers.

The governors of New York and West Virginia declined invitations because of prior commitments. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California did not respond to his invitation.

Gov. Thomas P. Salmon of Vermont and Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island are attending in their respective roles as chairman of the National Governors Conference energy committee and chairman of the Democratic Governors Conference.

In another energy development, Senate sources said Wednesday that Ford and Congress are trying to reach a last-minute compromise on the impending decontrol of oil prices.

The President has said he will veto a bill passed by Congress that would extend price controls for six months beyond Aug. 31, but the bill has not been sent to him yet.

One Senate source said, "Discussions are still going on ... They are still hopeful of working out a compromise." It was unclear what kind of compromise might be involved.

If price controls end at midnight Sunday, the current $5.25-a-barrel ceiling on about 60 per cent of U.S.-produced oil would be lifted and the price of that oil is expected to rise to the unregulated world level of around $12 a barrel.

Foreign Policy Review Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A broad look at U.S. foreign policy will be taken by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Chairman John J. Sparkman announced today.

He said "as many as 20 nonpartisan educational hearings" will be held to spell out the policy options available in the next decade.

"The topics to be examined will include such broad issues as the nation's self-image; whether we should be a policeman or civilian in the world; whether we should be a merchant, philanthropist, or both," he said.

Sparkman's statement said "the timing is most appropriate as the country enters its third century and passes from the post-World War II and Vietnam eras looking for new ideas and alternatives."

He said the committee is keenly interested in listening to what the country's citizenry as well as its leadership has to say.

Last year, under the chairmanship of former Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee held hearings spread over three months on the subject of detente.

They failed to generate the interest or the attention some senators hoped for, partly perhaps because they coincided with the period of former President Richard M. Nixon's resignation.

nation and the advent of the Ford administration.

A committee aide said the forthcoming hearings will be much broader in scope and have a wider spectrum of witnesses.

He said it will be the committee's first in-depth study of foreign policy since 1960.

The first of the hearings will be held Sept. 10 and will deal with public preceptions of foreign policy. Leading public opinion researchers will be among the witnesses.

A second hearing on Oct. 8 will look at U.S. values and goals in the world, with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger as the witnesses.

The role of resources in foreign policy will be examined at a third hearing tentatively set for Oct. 22. Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, and Secretary of Commerce Rogers C.B. Morton are to testify.

Hearings in November and December will feature the views of persons outside government. Additional sessions will be held later.

U.S. And France Compete For Aircraft Sales To Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appears to be heading into a stiff international competition to sell Japan at least $1 billion in new jet fighters. Once again, the main U.S. rival may be France.

Defense officials say Japan is in the market for 100 to 125 new fighters to replace obsolescent warplanes.

Four advanced U.S. planes are in the running — the highly sophisticated Air Force F15 and Navy F14, and the less costly Air Force F16 and Navy F18 lightweight fighters.

Pitted against them are the French Mirage F1 and the Swedish Viggen, both of which lost out earlier this year when four NATO nations picked the F16 as their basic fighter for the future. Another entrant for the Japanese competition is the MRCA, a plane developed jointly by Britain, West Germany and Italy.

The United States came out on top Wednesday in another contest with the French, Swedish and British when the Swiss government announced it will recommend to its parliament purchasing 72 of the F5 fighters. That contract will be worth about $500 million.

A Japanese military mission came here this summer for preliminary talks with Pentagon officials after visiting the European countries that offer planes for sale.

Following that reconnaissance, defense sources say Japanese experts are conducting a major study of all the contending aircraft and will narrow the field to three in a few months. A final choice is expected about a year later.

The Japanese are understood to be seeking a deal which would include a share in the production of the planes. This would mean jobs for Japanese workers and other economic benefits.

So far, the United States has offered no special incentives to the Japanese, Pentagon officials indicate. That may come in later negotiations, especially if the French put on major sales pitch as they did in their unsuccessful bid to persuade the Dutch, Belgians, Norwegians and Danes to buy the Mirage instead of the F16.

"The French always put out a major effort," said one official. "They need sales desperately."

Cigarette Consumption Dips Slightly

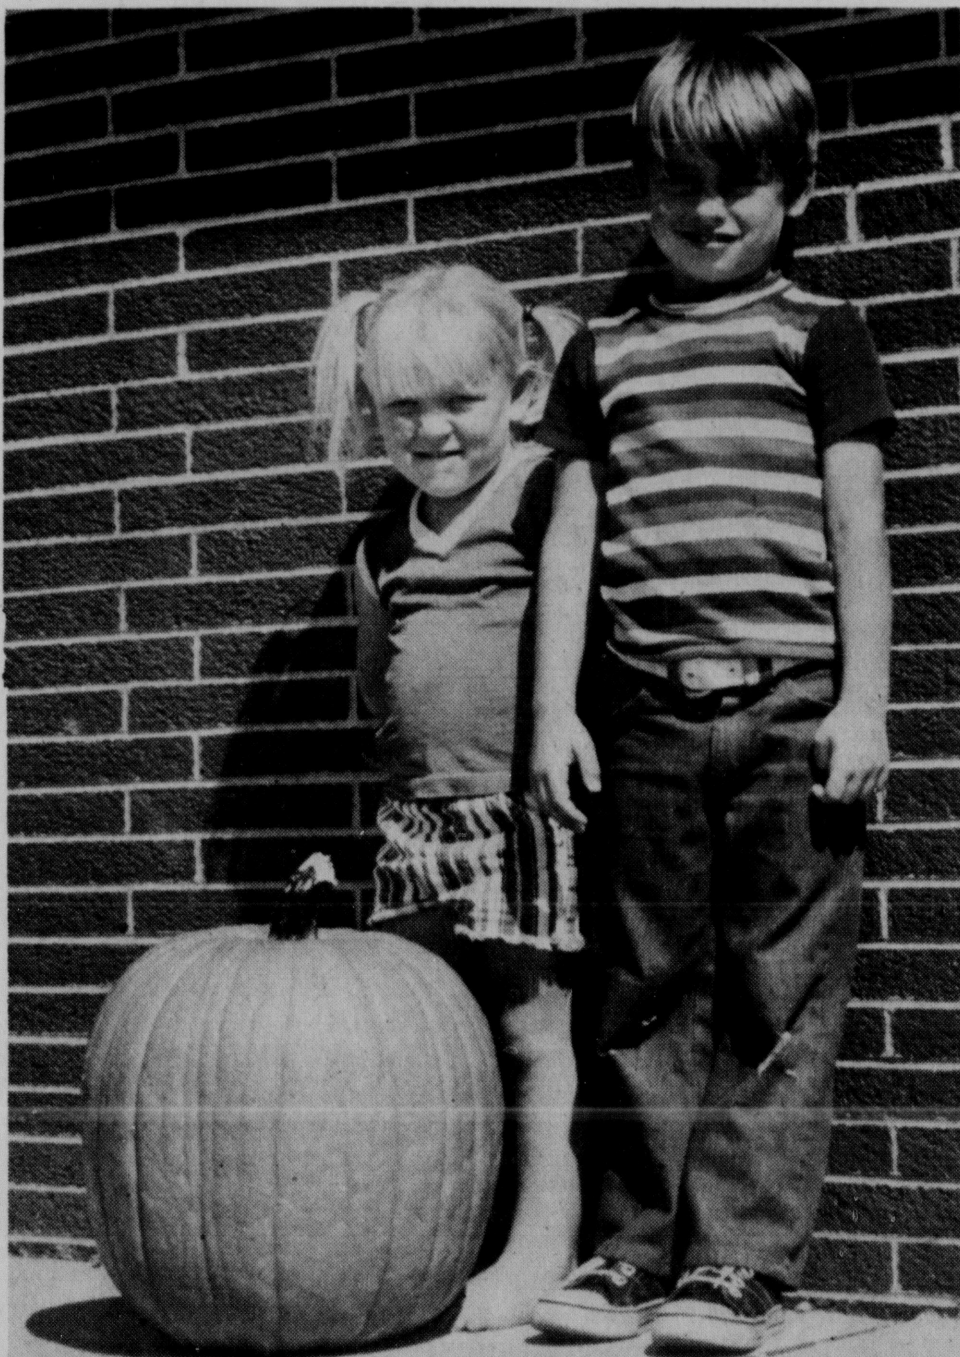

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. per capita cigarette consumption dropped slightly in 1974 to mark the first decline in five years, although the industry spent more for advertising last year than any year since 1970, the Federal Trade Commission said today.

At the same time, the FTC told Congress that domestic sales were up about 1.7 per cent to 594.5 billion cigarettes last year. That was a record, surpassing the old high of 584.7 billion cigarettes sold in 1973, but indicating a slowdown in the recent trend, the FTC said.

However, consumption on a per capita basis among U.S. residents and overseas military personnel 18 years of age and older was 4,110 cigarettes in 1974, compared with 4,112 in 1973 and 4,286 in 1963.

Cigarette manufacturers spent $306.8 million on advertising last year, the highest since $314.7 million in 1970 before Congress banned cigarette commercials on radio and television, the FTC said.

The advertising included $114.6 million in magazine ads, $80.5 million in newspapers, $71.4 million for billboards, $31.1 million in direct advertising promotions and $9.2 million in other media.

PUMPKIN SHOW—Not yet! But, this 32¼-pound pumpkin grew from a volunteer vine that was not intended to reproduce. Mrs. Clark McFarland, Route 1, Williamsport, said she made a jack-o-lantern last fall out of a pumpkin and then disposed of it. Apparently seedling from the jack-o-lantern caused the pumpkin to grow from a volunteer vine. Mrs. McFarland's children, C. K. McFarland III, right and Toni Sue McFarland, left stand beside the amazing result.

Cigarette Consumption Dips Slightly

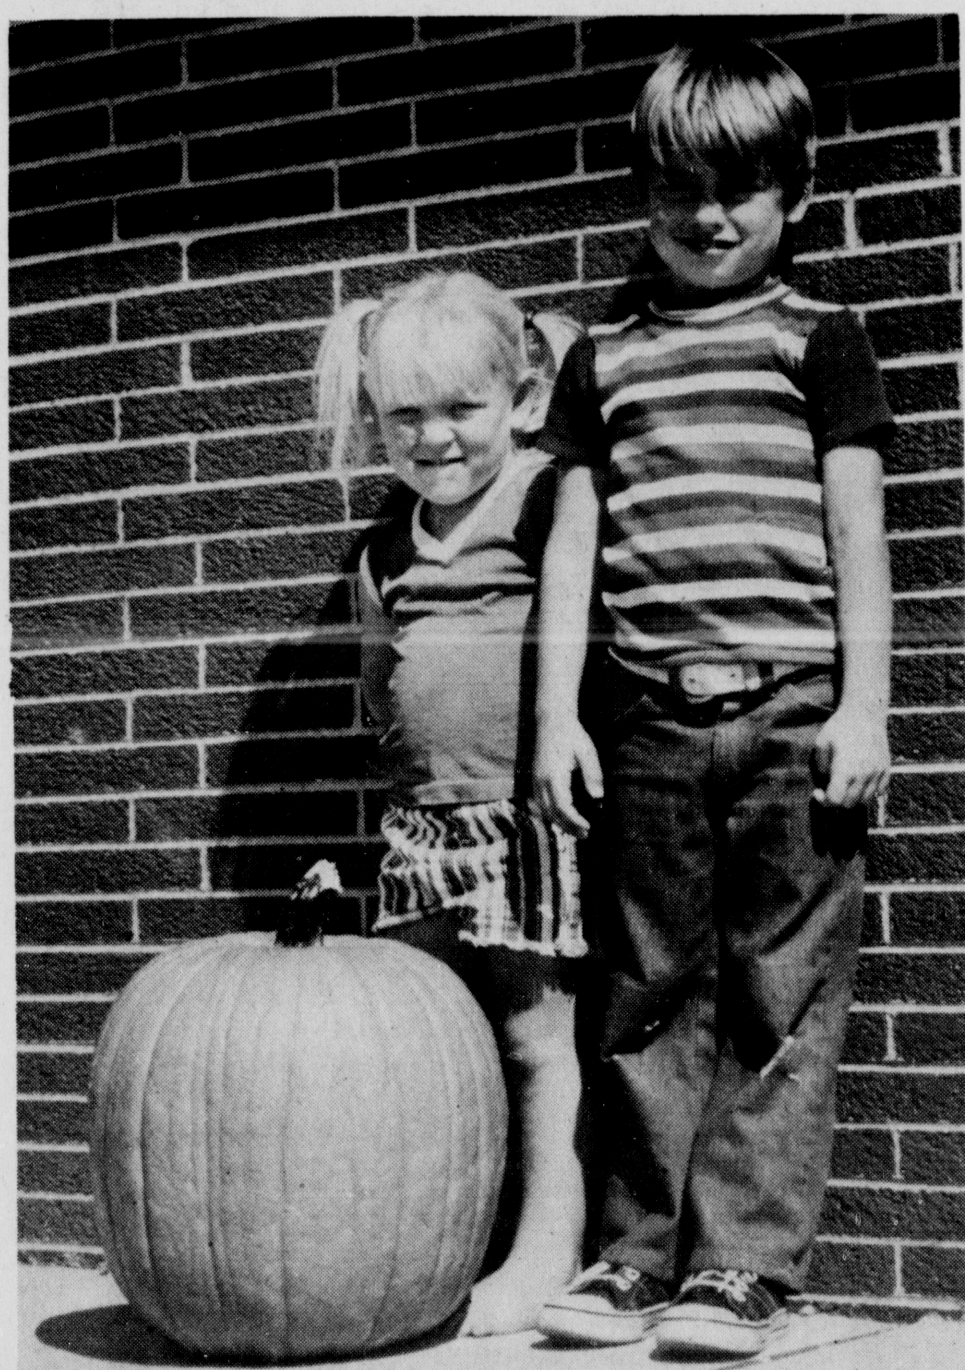

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. per capita cigarette consumption dropped slightly in 1974 to mark the first decline in five years, although the industry spent more for advertising last year than any year since 1970, the Federal Trade Commission said today.

At the same time, the FTC told Congress that domestic sales were up about 1.7 per cent to 594.5 billion cigarettes last year. That was a record, surpassing the old high of 584.7 billion cigarettes sold in 1973, but indicating a slowdown in the recent trend, the FTC said.

However, consumption on a per capita basis among U.S. residents and overseas military personnel 18 years of age and older was 4,110 cigarettes in 1974, compared with 4,112 in 1973 and 4,286 in 1963.

Cigarette manufacturers spent $306.8 million on advertising last year, the highest since $314.7 million in 1970 before Congress banned cigarette commercials on radio and television, the FTC said.

The advertising included $114.6 million in magazine ads, $80.5 million in newspapers, $71.4 million for billboards, $31.1 million in direct advertising promotions and $9.2 million in other media.

PUMPKIN SHOW—Not yet! But, this 32¼-pound pumpkin grew from a volunteer vine that was not intended to reproduce. Mrs. Clark McFarland, Route 1, Williamsport, said she made a jack-o-lantern last fall out of a pumpkin and then disposed of it. Apparently seedling from the jack-o-lantern caused the pumpkin to grow from a volunteer vine. Mrs. McFarland's children, C. K. McFarland III, right and Toni Sue McFarland, left stand beside the amazing result.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a sharp gain today in buying apparently sparked by comments on interest rates and the economy by the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 9.55 at 816.57, and advances outnumbered declines by more than a 5-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

In a letter made public late Wednesday, Fed chairman Arthur F. Burns told Rep. Henry S. Reuss, the chairman of the House Banking Committee, that a substantial economic recovery could be achieved with the nation's money supply increasing at the central bank's target rate of 5 to 7 1/2 per cent.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .86 to 84.94.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .48 at 45.42.

Ohio State Fair Attendance Rises

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There's an opportunity of a lifetime at this year's Ohio State Fair: Be a television star or watch the stars.

Fifty volunteers are filming shows for viewing on a local cable station in Columbus during the fair.

"We want to let people know that through cable television they can have access," said Sue Larson, an employee of the Columbus Public Library.

By law, cable television operations must provide a channel for public use.

At the fair, volunteers are interviewing exhibit visitors, fair workers and fairgoers between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. every day for a program that is aired locally at 5 p.m.

Stories shot by crews roaming the fairgrounds are aired at 7 p.m.

The volunteers, aged 16 to 65, use a small booth in the Buckeye Building as a studio. The program is sponsored by the Columbus Technical Institute, which provided the equipment; the City of Columbus which put in $2,500, and 23 companies and individuals.

Don Hoferkamp, the city employee who supervises the three Columbus cable systems, estimated the cost of the project at $10,000.

Some 194,020 fairgoers attended the 12-day exposition on Wednesday. That pushed the total so far this year to 1,375,082, about 50,000 persons over the 1974 mark for the seventh day.

If you weren't being a star at the fair on television, you could watch the stars.

At the grandstand Thursday will be Merle Haggard, the country superstar from Bakersfield, Calif. who served time in San Quentin Prison. He will appear for two shows along with the Strangers Band, which he assembled in 1965.

Haggard has produced such hits as "Fightin' Side of Me", "Mama Tried", "If We Make It Through December", and "Okie From Muskogee".

On Friday, the rock group Earth, Wind & Fire performs. The eight-member soul group first hit the pop charts in 1971 with "Love is Life". Major hits since they have been "Evil", "Keep Your Head to the Sky", "Mighty, Mighty", "Kalimba Story", "Devotion", "Hot Dawgit", and "Shining Star".

Also at the fair Friday, Governor and Legislators' Day and WCOL Radio Day, a Junior Hampshire and Chester White show, open class National Shropshire Sheep show, 4-H dog obedience activity, open class Hampshire and Chester White show, open class Nubian Dairy Goat show, gourmet day contest, amateur potted plant judging, western square dancing with Dewey Hart calling, open class Suffolk sheep show, toddler's style show, junior fair breeding beef, gospel music contest, the play "A Midsummer Night's Dream", Shropshire Sheep sale, and barrow carcass contest.

Argentine Generals Get Their Way

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Generals opposed to military participation in President Isabel Peron's government forced her to accept the resignation of the army chief and prevented her from maneuvering them into retirement.

After 24 hours of tension, rumors of an impending military coup and intensive negotiations, Mrs. Peron accepted the resignation of Gen. Alberto Numa Laplane on Wednesday night and named Gen. Jorge Rafael Videla, the head of the joint chiefs of staff, to replace him.

Videla, 50, was one of the generals who forced Laplane to quit. He also is reported to have initiated the investigation that linked Mrs. Peron's former chief adviser, Jose Lopez Rega, to the right-wing assassination squads that have been active in recent months.

The president reportedly hoped to force the dissident generals into retirement by replacing Laplane with an officer junior to them. But with all army units on full alert and the generals meeting at a nearby army base, she abandoned her plan and agreed to Videla.

The latest crisis in Mrs. Peron's 13-month-old regime stemmed from her appointment of a military man, Col. Vicente Damasco, to be interior minister on Aug. 11.

Some of the generals immediately demanded that Damasco resign his cabinet post or retire from the army so that there would be no suggestion of military responsibility for Mrs. Peron's tottering government. The generals turned their fire on Laplane after he supported Damasco and said he could stay in both the army and the cabinet.

Laplane submitted his resignation Tuesday night, but Mrs. Peron refused to accept it. The army's division commanders put their troops on the alert; civilian leaders united behind Mrs. Peron, and the dissident generals gathered at the Campo de Mayo army base 16 miles north of Buenos Aires under the leadership of Gen. Carlos Delia Larroca, the commander of the 3rd Division.

Buckeye Trail Project Wins Bicentennial Grant

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A grant of $100,000 has been awarded to the Buckeye Trail Project by the Ohio American Revolution Bicentennial Advisory Commission.

The trail, used for hiking and horseback riding, is currently 900 miles long and open to the public without charge.

Tangible Tax Distributed

State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's office announced today the largest intangible tax revenue distribution in Ohio history with $87,638,563.49 going to the state's 88 counties.

Pickaway County will receive $197,637.32 of the total amount.

The amount of intangible tax revenues each county receives annually is based on the number, capital and investments of financial institutions and securities dealers located in, or doing business in that county, Ferguson noted.

The intangible tax is three mills per dollar on the value of shares of, capital employed by the interest earned on capital employed by financial institutions and six mills per dollar on the value of shares of and capital employed by securities dealers, Ferguson said.

However, the counties shared only the revenue raised by two mills on financial institutions and five mills on securities dealers. The remaining $4,776,463.76 went into the state's general fund, Ferguson said.

Fire Destroys Two Vehicles

Sheriff's Authorities investigated two vehicular fires Wednesday, one involving an auto and the other a van.

A can of gasoline sitting on the front floor of a car driven by Paul Harmon, was the cause of the auto fire, investigated by Deputy Warren Straley 11:35 a.m. Wednesday.

Harmon was traveling on the Circleville-Lockbourne Road when a cat ran in front of the auto causing him to make a sudden stop. The can of gasoline spilled and touched a loose wire which apparently sparked the fire.

He tried to pick the can up, but the heat from the fire was too intense. Harmon then pulled the 1973 auto into the Scioto Valley Grange lot where he called the Harrison Twp. Fire Department.

Fire caused $2400 damage to the windows and interior of the auto.

A 1964 van used to make deliveries to the White Cottage Restaurant in New Holland was destroyed by fire, 4:55 p.m. Wednesday, investigated by Deputy James Dixon.

While on routine patrol, Dixon noticed smoke coming from the rear of the restaurant and went to investigate the situation.

Dixon notified the New Holland Fire Department which took 30 minutes to extinguish the fire completely engulfing the van.

Ronald Miller, Washington C. H. was the owner of the van.

Damage estimate was unknown.

Leadership Delegates Speak At Red Cross Board Meeting

Delegates to Red Cross Youth Leadership Training Center were guest speakers at the Wednesday meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Red Cross. Porta Martin and Kim Strous gave a detailed account of their four busy days at Otterbein College and expressed their appreciation to the chapter for providing them the opportunity to participate in the program.

The need for chairmen of both the youth and adult volunteer programs was discussed at length. Since the resignation of Barbara Tootle as youth chairman the board is actively seeking a replacement for her.

Klara Tammany, who directed the summer Water Safety Program reported total participation of some 900 as instructors, aides, assistants and students in 35 classes held at 5 locations in Pickaway County. There are presently 16 instructors trained to teach up-dated Red Cross Water Safety materials.

Bill Stout, Rotary Club Blood Program Chairman reported that he and his committee have several new ideas for publicity and recruitment for the Bloodmobile visits during 1975-1976. He stressed the importance of individuals, industries and organizations making sure that donors are scheduled before 3 p.m. of the day preceding each visit so that the center may be prepared for a smooth operation. Staff and volunteers from the local chapter will be assisting at a visit on Friday at Orient State Institute.

Mel Ehrlich reported that the car

committee has placed the order for the 1976 station wagons for the chapter. The 1975 cars will be for sale about November 1. Since the mileage is low they are considered an excellent value. Anyone who would be interested in reserving one of the cars may do so by calling the Chapter at 474-5736.

Judge Being Held In Federal Prison

TERRE HAUTE (AP) — The warden of the federal prison here says it is far-fetched to think that former Texas Judge Archer Parr will receive special treatment. Warden Charles Benson said Parr will be treated just like any other prisoner.

He denied reports that Parr would live in a private home instead of a cell block.

Benson said the prison had no private facilities.

Parr was sentenced to ten years in prison for lying to a Texas grand jury. He was Duvall County judge for 15 years.

At the fair, volunteers are interviewing exhibit visitors, fair workers and fairgoers between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. every day for a program that is aired locally at 5 p.m.

Stories shot by crews roaming the fairgrounds are aired at 7 p.m.

The volunteers, aged 16 to 65, use a small booth in the Buckeye Building as a studio. The program is sponsored by the Columbus Technical Institute, which provided the equipment; the City of Columbus which put in $2,500, and 23 companies and individuals.

Don Hoferkamp, the city employee who supervises the three Columbus cable systems, estimated the cost of the project at $10,000.

Some 194,020 fairgoers attended the 12-day exposition on Wednesday. That pushed the total so far this year to 1,375,082, about 50,000 persons over the 1974 mark for the seventh day.

If you weren't being a star at the fair on television, you could watch the stars. At the grandstand Thursday will be Merle Haggard, the country superstar from Bakersfield, Calif. who served time in San Quentin Prison. He will appear for two shows along with the Strangers Band, which he assembled in 1965.

Haggard has produced such hits as "Fightin' Side of Me", "Mama Tried", "If We Make It Through December", and "Okie From Muskogee".

On Friday, the rock group Earth, Wind & Fire performs. The eight-member soul group first hit the pop charts in 1971 with "Love is Life". Major hits since they have been "Evil", "Keep Your Head to the Sky", "Mighty, Mighty", "Kalimba Story", "Devotion", "Hot Dawgit", and "Shining Star".

Also at the fair Friday, Governor and Legislators' Day and WCOL Radio Day, a Junior Hampshire and Chester White show, open class National Shropshire Sheep show, 4-H dog obedience activity, open class Hampshire and Chester White show, open class Nubian Dairy Goat show, gourmet day contest, amateur potted plant judging, western square dancing with Dewey Hart calling, open class Suffolk sheep show, toddler's style show, junior fair breeding beef, gospel music contest, the play "A Midsummer Night's Dream", Shropshire Sheep sale, and barrow carcass contest.

Berger Wing To Be Ready For Occupancy In December

Berger Hospital's new ancillary wing will be ready for occupancy in December, the board of governors was told Wednesday by hospital director Charles Rideout.

Rideout said that bids for equipment for the wing will be accepted until noon Sept. 24. The bid specifications call for delivery of the equipment between Nov. 15 and Dec. 1.

The equipment list was approved by the board of governors during their regular monthly meeting.

The annual report for 1974 was presented by Ernst and Ernst.

The lack of availability of malpractice insurance from private carriers was discussed. Specifications for the hospital's total insurance package have been sent to local agents. However, it was pointed out the hospital will probably have to participate in the new state malpractice insurance program.

Patient days for July were down from a year ago, a situation was attributed in part to doctors' vacations during the month.

The board authorized the payment of $1,000 to the Mid Ohio Health Planning Federation and of $131,328 in construction bills.

The contract for plastering and painting the north corridor was awarded, Rideout noted.

The board of governors agreed to form a community committee whose function will be to make various recommendations for general public relations, fund raising activities, position recruitment. Each board member has been asked to submit a list of names and the committee will be selected from these lists.

Additional emergency room coverage was discussed. Estimated cost of the program which calls for staffing the room 24 hours a day seven days a week was placed at $168,000. The board deferred further action on the proposals until the next meeting.

Rideout announced that state and federal governments have recertified Berger Hospital for medicare patients.

Lawnmower Burns

The Circleville Fire Department was called to 338 E. Mill St. 5:40 p.m. Wednesday to put out a burning lawnmower. According to the firemen's report, Mac Moore was refueling his mower when the gasoline fumes ignited.

Tangible Tax Distributed

State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's office announced today the largest intangible tax revenue distribution in Ohio history with $87,638,563.49 going to the state's 88 counties.

Pickaway County will receive $197,637.32 of the total amount.

The amount of intangible tax revenues each county receives annually is based on the number, capital and investments of financial institutions and securities dealers located in, or doing business in that county, Ferguson noted.

The intangible tax is three mills per dollar on the value of shares of, capital employed by the interest earned on capital employed by financial institutions and six mills per dollar on the value of shares of and capital employed by securities dealers, Ferguson said.

However, the counties shared only the revenue raised by two mills on financial institutions and five mills on securities dealers. The remaining $4,776,463.76 went into the state's general fund, Ferguson said.

Fire Destroys Two Vehicles

Sheriff's Authorities investigated two vehicular fires Wednesday, one involving an auto and the other a van.

A can of gasoline sitting on the front floor of a car driven by Paul Harmon, was the cause of the auto fire, investigated by Deputy Warren Straley 11:35 a.m. Wednesday.

Harmon was traveling on the Circleville-Lockbourne Road when a cat ran in front of the auto causing him to make a sudden stop. The can of gasoline spilled and touched a loose wire which apparently sparked the fire.

He tried to pick the can up, but the heat from the fire was too intense. Harmon then pulled the 1973 auto into the Scioto Valley Grange lot where he called the Harrison Twp. Fire Department.

Fire caused $2400 damage to the windows and interior of the auto.

A 1964 van used to make deliveries to the White Cottage Restaurant in New Holland was destroyed by fire, 4:55 p.m. Wednesday, investigated by Deputy James Dixon.

While on routine patrol, Dixon noticed smoke coming from the rear of the restaurant and went to investigate the situation.

Dixon notified the New Holland Fire Department which took 30 minutes to extinguish the fire completely engulfing the van.

Ronald Miller, Washington C. H. was the owner of the van.

Damage estimate was unknown.

Leadership Delegates Speak At Red Cross Board Meeting

Delegates to Red Cross Youth Leadership Training Center were guest speakers at the Wednesday meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Red Cross. Porta Martin and Kim Strous gave a detailed account of their four busy days at Otterbein College and expressed their appreciation to the chapter for providing them the opportunity to participate in the program.

The need for chairmen of both the youth and adult volunteer programs was discussed at length. Since the resignation of Barbara Tootle as youth chairman the board is actively seeking a replacement for her.

Klara Tammany, who directed the summer Water Safety Program reported total participation of some 900 as instructors, aides, assistants and students in 35 classes held at 5 locations in Pickaway County. There are presently 16 instructors trained to teach up-dated Red Cross Water Safety materials.

Bill Stout, Rotary Club Blood Program Chairman reported that he and his committee have several new ideas for publicity and recruitment for the Bloodmobile visits during 1975-1976. He stressed the importance of individuals, industries and organizations making sure that donors are scheduled before 3 p.m. of the day preceding each visit so that the center may be prepared for a smooth operation. Staff and volunteers from the local chapter will be assisting at a visit on Friday at Orient State Institute.

Mel Ehrlich reported that the car

committee has placed the order for the 1976 station wagons for the chapter. The 1975 cars will be for sale about November 1. Since the mileage is low they are considered an excellent value. Anyone who would be interested in reserving one of the cars may do so by calling the Chapter at 474-5736.

Judge Being Held In Federal Prison

TERRE HAUTE (AP) — The warden of the federal prison here says it is far-fetched to think that former Texas Judge Archer Parr will receive special treatment. Warden Charles Benson said Parr will be treated just like any other prisoner.

He denied reports that Parr would live in a private home instead of a cell block.

Benson said the prison had no private facilities.

Parr was sentenced to ten years in prison for lying to a Texas grand jury. He was Duval County judge for 15 years.

Schools Receive 'Gift Of Music'

The response from thousands of high schools and colleges throughout the country to a new collection of music for the Bicentennial celebration has been uniformly enthusiastic, according to Dick Allen, store manager of JC Penney, in Circleville.

"School music groups are planning Bicentennial Musical Celebration concerts next fall with this new music," Allen said. "In our own area, packages of the Celebration music have been received by Circleville, Teays Valley and Westfall Schools."

Permanent Tax Cuts Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Al Ullman of the House Ways and Means Committee is suggesting a permanent extension of the $7.7 billion individual income tax cuts that were enacted last spring as a one-shot anti-recession move.

In a committee publication Tuesday, the Oregon Democrat also said the $2.5 billion cut in business taxes should be extended for one more year, through 1976, and he proposed extending the $3.3 billion investment tax credit through 1977.

The Ford administration has not taken a stand on whether the individual income tax cut should be continued next year. Economic spokesmen have said they could wait as late as October before deciding if the nation's economic recovery requires continued stimulus from lower taxes.

Should the tax cut not be continued next year, workers will find a larger tax deduction from their paychecks beginning Jan. 1 as the tax rates revert to the levels in effect before the cut took place.

Ullman proposed to raise the minimum standard deduction from $1,300 to $1,600 for an individual and to $1,900 for a joint return; increase the percentage standard deduction from 15 to 16 per cent and the maximum standard deduction from $2,000 to $2,300 for an individual and $2,600 for a couple; and give each taxpayer and dependent a $30 tax credit, to be deducted from the total tax owed.

No Chestnut Tree At Smithy's

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Contrary to what Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said about the village blacksmith, there is no spreading chestnut tree at the corner of Washington and Winslow Avenues NW in the Flats.

Nor, are there horses waiting to be shod.

But, there is a blacksmith's shop, Hugel's Blacksmith Shop, as a matter of fact.

Operated by Joseph M. Hugel of Parma since April, 1966, it is one of only five such establishments listed in the yellow pages of the Cleveland telephone directory.

Actually, Hugel, who has been a blacksmith for 30 years, has never made a horseshoe or shod a horse. Technically speaking, that type of blacksmith is known as a farrier.

Hugel specializes in the tooling end of the blacksmith's trade.

Hugel does not have large and sinewy hands. The muscles of his arms do not appear especially brawny or as strong as iron bands. Frankly, he is only five feet 10 and weighs 163 pounds.

But, his brow is covered with sweat and he sure takes a mighty swing with a heavy sledge when he straightens out a tap hole bar for an air gun on his anvil.

Hugel, 53, also sharpens bits for air hammers and reshapes screw drivers.

These and many other tasks he performs for such regular customers as Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Alcoa, Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., Atlas Car and Mfg. Co. and the Gorman-Lavelle Co.

Occasionally, he also extends some plow points, or cleans and rebuilds some disks for a farmer.

The latter end of his business he conducts mostly on a barter system, collecting old crocks, wine presses or cords of wood in payment for his services.

Hugel loves his work. But, he deprecates the fact that the blacksmith's trade is a dying art.

"I had a couple of young fellows in here," he said. "They picked up a sledge, swung it a few times and discovered muscles they never knew they had. They wound up with sore muscles and never came back."

The roof leaks and he uses one of the crocks to catch the raindrops. Tools and equipment are scattered all over the floor. The office is all muddled up. But, as the proprietor of a oneman shop, he can lay his hands on anything he needs in an instant.

He works all hours of the day. There is no 40-hour week for him. Still, Hugel speaks with a satisfied air.

Because as Longfellow also wrote: "He can look the whole world in the face, for he owes no man."

Permanent Tax Cuts Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Al Ullman of the House Ways and Means Committee is suggesting a permanent extension of the $7.7 billion individual income tax cuts that were enacted last spring as a one-shot antirecession move.

In a committee publication Tuesday, the Oregon Democrat also said the $2.5 billion cut in business taxes should be extended for one more year, through 1976, and he proposed extending the $3.3 billion investment tax credit through 1977.

The Ford administration has not taken a stand on whether the individual income tax cut should be continued next year. Economic spokesmen have said they could wait as late as October before deciding if the nation's economic recovery requires continued stimulus from lower taxes.

Should the tax cut not be continued next year, workers will find a larger tax deduction from their paychecks beginning Jan. 1 as the tax rates revert to the levels in effect before the cut took place.

Ullman proposed to raise the minimum standard deduction from $1,300 to $1,600 for an individual and to $1,900 for a joint return; increase the percentage standard deduction from 15 to 16 per cent and the maximum standard deduction from $2,000 to $2,300 for an individual and $2,600 for a couple; and give each taxpayer and dependent a $30 tax credit, to be deducted from the total tax owed.

America's 200-year musical heritage were scored, arranged and printed for distribution to America's high schools and colleges as JC Penney's Bicentennial gift to America. The three boxes of music — one each for band, orchestra and chorus — comprise the Bicentennial Musical Celebration, 30 numbers from musical archives and five newly-commissioned works by contemporary composers.

"Opening the box was like another Christmas day," the music director of a high school in Chicago wrote. "... A remarkable contribution to music education and a splendid way to celebrate the Bicentennial," another wrote from Blauvelt, New York.

"Orders for the music are still coming in," Allen said. "The response from schools in Pickaway County as well as from throughout the country has reassured us that we chose the most appropriate way to recognize our Bicentennial."

Distribution of the music packages will continue through next fall. Those schools who have not received their music or who failed to send in their requests earlier are advised to contact the manager of their nearest JC Penney store, Allen said.

"Some schools sent in their requests but somehow failed to list name and address," he added.

The Bicentennial Musical Celebration was assembled by a blue ribbon panel of musicians and music educators from throughout the country. They were asked to gather a representative selection of music from the pre-Revolutionary era to the present, with emphasis on material that is not commercially available.

The selection includes a band number composed by New Englander William Billings in 1770, a Sousa march "lost" since its performance at President Garfield's inauguration in 1881, and a romanza for oboe and string orchestra by a Cherokee Indian composer.

In addition, five new works were commissioned to eminent contemporary composers — "Man of La Mancha" composer Mitch Leigh, Pulitzer Prize-winner Norman Dello Joio, jazzman David Baker, Black classicist Adolphus C. Hailstork, and Californian Roger Nixon, noted for his compositions for band.

The musical celebration was the first major Bicentennial project originating in the private sector to be awarded the coveted official recognition by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, the Federal agency coordinating the nation's 200th birthday activities.

No Chestnut Tree At Smithy's

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Contrary to what Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said about the village blacksmith, there is no spreading chestnut tree at the corner of Washington and Winslow Avenues NW in the Flats.

Nor, are there horses waiting to be shod.

But, there is a blacksmith's shop, Hugel's Blacksmith Shop, as a matter of fact.

Operated by Joseph M. Hugel of Parma since April, 1966, it is one of only five such establishments listed in the yellow pages of the Cleveland telephone directory.

Actually, Hugel, who has been a blacksmith for 30 years, has never made a horseshoe or shod a horse. Technically speaking, that type of blacksmith is known as a farrier.

Hugel specializes in the tooling end of the blacksmith's trade.

Hugel does not have large and sinewy hands. The muscles of his arms do not appear especially brawny or as strong as iron bands. Frankly, he is only five feet 10 and weighs 163 pounds.

But, his brow is covered with sweat and he sure takes a mighty swing with a heavy sledge when he straightens out a tap hole bar for an air gun on his anvil.

Hugel, 53, also sharpens bits for air hammers and reshapes screw drivers.

These and many other tasks he performs for such regular customers as Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Alcoa, Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., Atlas Car and Mfg. Co. and the Gorman-Lavelle Co.

Occasionally, he also extends some plow points, or cleans and rebuilds some disks for a farmer.

The latter end of his business he conducts mostly on a barter system, collecting old crocks, wine presses or cords of wood in payment for his services.

Hugel loves his work. But, he deprecates the fact that the blacksmith's trade is a dying art.

"I had a couple of young fellows in here," he said. "They picked up a sledge, swung it a few times and discovered muscles they never knew they had. They wound up with sore muscles and never came back."

The roof leaks and he uses one of the crocks to catch the raindrops. Tools and equipment are scattered all over the floor. The office is all muddled up. But, as the proprietor of a oneman shop, he can lay his hands on anything he needs in an instant.

He works all hours of the day. There is no 40-hour week for him. Still, Hugel speaks with a satisfied air.

Because as Longfellow also wrote: "He can look the whole world in the face, for he owes no man."

Watch Your Step, Uncle Sam

The middle East agreement between Israel and Egypt will be greeted with applause as a means of lowering tension in that explosive area of the world.

However, to achieve this agreement, the United States will be plunged deeper into the morass than ever before.

For the first time, American personnel will be on the immediate scene, manning listening posts in the buffer zone between the two nations. The United States will also be pledged to provide several billion dollars in aid to Israel to help maintain her military stance.

Already, Sen. Mike Mansfield has said he would oppose the use of American civilians in a danger zone, and President Ford has indicated he would send no one if Congress disapproves.

We hope Congress will not disapprove. If a small American presence is necessary to defuse tensions, that presence should be there. Extreme caution should be used, though we doubt Sen.

Mansfield's fears of a new Vietnam.

Here again, the senator's fear of American civilians being in a danger zone is possibly overdrawn. Any such civilians will certainly know their business and also the dangers involved. Even their civilian status may be questionable.

With supreme caution, such a system will work. Top officials should not, however see that American presence as a foothold, but rather as a doorstep.

A Streaker Bit

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — There's an outside chance (outside?) that readers who are perpetually critical of the American press will object to the suggestion herewith offered that they be deported to London immediately and forced to read only British newspapers until allowed to return to the U.S. by Presidential amnesty.

Perfidious Albion has more economic and Empah troubles than most of the civilized countries of the world combined. It is in immensely more trouble than it was two centuries ago when George III fouled up the little matter of more independence and representation for a relative handful of subjects 3,000 miles away in a colony named for an obscure Italian navigator who called himself Americus Vespuccius.

But a friend who is an addict of British journalism sends us a batch of recent clippings which would indicate that the biggest thing that has happened in the land from which we stole the Magna Carta and God knows what else, including Cary Grant, is that some oaf took off his clothes and streaked across the cricket green at Lord's during a match between the British and Australians. Proper Bobbies quickly rushed him out of sight for those in attendance.

But the Daily Mail had him on Page 1, showing the fat lout's behind as it cleared a sticky wicket, and the accompanying news story piously read, in part, "... BBC cameras followed the dash but showed the streaker only from the rear. Producer Mr. David Kenning said: 'I cut to a long shot to avoid any embarrassment.'"

Such as the nation's impending bankruptcy, shocking inflation, lost inheritance, confiscatory taxes, untenable position in Ulster, and its sorry default as a world power and protector, by divine right, of the stiff upper lip?

Another London daily ran a picture of the streaker next to one of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, with the following captioned goodies:

"SMARTEN UP, HAROLD — AND GIVE US ALL A NEW IMAGE. Isn't it astounding how Michael Angelow, the bare cheeky chap who jumped, starkers, over the Lord's wicket 'just for fun,' did more to raise our spirits, uplift our hearts, and completely reinflate us than Harold Wilson's done, fully-clothed, in months?"

The readers of the London papers had their choice, also, of a real in-depth feature about the reactions of Angelow's family when he returned home after being fined 20 quid and warned by Lt. Col. Haswell, the magistrate in this momentous case, "Please moderate your behavior in future." Ready?

"He (Angelow) denied that he had been severely reprimanded by his mother, Mrs. Betty Angelow, 50. When he got home she just said: 'Hello, streaker.' His father, Alex, was in bed."

Not even New York's Village Voice would have done a think like that to anybody on this side of the Atlantic. Not even to Richard Nixon, its favorite pinned-up boy.

Henry Kissinger, who apparently is the only government employee working these days in Washington, has traveled so much in recent years that — according to one shrewd observer of the passing scene — he is developing a foreign accent. But, according to Paul Garvey, chief Washington distributor of shrewd observations, there's no reason to worry.

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If you measure the federal government's performance by the Employment Act of 1946 you might be inclined to give it poor marks — in fact, you might be incensed enough to flunk it.

That act committed government to promoting maximum employment, production and purchasing power. But, the achievement falls far short of the goals.

—More than eight million workers are jobless.

—Some industries are operating at less than 70 per cent of their production capacity.

—Real spendable earnings, that is, weekly pay adjusted for increases in prices and taxes, fell in six of the first seven months of the year.

What's to blame? Some grumblings among campus economists put the blame on the Ford administration for seeming to be content to accept a relatively high jobless rate.

A great many more analysts blame "conditions." No government has complete control over economic events, they explain. Instead, any government can only work with the conditions presented to it.

They suggest that when the law was written we were in a euphoric mood. We had just won the war; now we would win the peace, economic and otherwise. We wouldn't just shoot for goals; we would establish standards.

Some critics blame the law itself. It is almost contradictory, they say. It commits governments to pushing their resources to the limit, to always flirt with inflation, to take dangerous risks with economic stability.

To achieve maximum production and employment, they point out, is to court inflation. You cannot run your factories to the limit and force unemployment toward zero without simultaneously lighting the price fires.

In the effort to achieve the maximum, marginal production units are employed and inefficient labor is employed. This shows up in costs of production. And those costs are passed on in the form of higher prices.

Furthermore, goes the argument, no government can be so sensitive and skillful that it can know precisely when the maximum total benefits are being achieved. The statistical evidence on which an administration must rely is often too inconclusive and generally received too late.

In any event, this is a world economy. No trading nation has sufficient control of events to dictate what it is going to do. The business cycle can be exported from one country to another, like it or not.

While the law remains on the books, and most likely will continue to remain there, our interpretation of it is bound to change.

During the 1960s it was confidently believed that a jobless rate as low as 4 per cent could be attained without pushing inflation to more than 1 or 2 per cent. Few economists now accept that goal without reservations.

Among other things, events demonstrated that pure economics never can be practiced in a political world. At some point it is almost inevitable that a decision will be made to sacrifice jobs for prices or vice versa.

As a goal, the act still is valid. But the standards aren't what they used to be. Four per cent unemployment, at least, looks a long way off.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some 19 persons are expected to die on state roads during the 78-hour Labor Day weekend, state safety experts predicted on Tuesday.

Projected figures for the extended holiday weekend show the fatalities could include one bicyclist, two motorcyclists, two pedestrians and 14 killed in other motor vehicle accidents.

Ohio Highway Safety Director Donald Cook said the state highway patrol has been alerted to strictly enforce the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit during the weekend which begins at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday.

Metals Park east of Cleveland in Geauga County, Ohio, has a semicircular building surmounted by the largest geodesic dome of its type in the world. It is headquarters of the American Society for Metals.

Today is Thursday, August 28, the 240th day of 1975. There are 125 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1609, the English navigator, Henry Hudson, discovered Delaware Bay.

On this date: In 1913, the Palace of Peace — a gift of the American industrialist, Andrew Carnegie — was dedicated at the Hague in Holland.

In 1916, Germany declared war on Romania.

In 1917, ten suffragettes were arrested as they picketed the White House in Washington.

In 1963, about 200,000 people — blacks and whites — joined in a peaceful civil rights rally in Washington.

Ten years ago: President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic was in Moscow on a state visit.

Five years ago: The U.S. Command in South Vietnam reported the smallest toll of American combat dead in four years — 52 men killed during the week.

One year ago: Two orbiting Soviet spacemen cut short their mission and returned to earth without making a planned linkup with a space station.

Today's birthdays: Actress Ingrid Bergman is 58. Actor Charles Boyer is 76.

Thought for today: Without error there can be no such thing as truth. — A Chinese saying.

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years ago today, early in the American Revolution, Rev. Peter Shewkirk of New York wrote in his diary: "The moving out of the town continues, and the city looks in some streets as if the plague had been in it, so many houses being shut up."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What is the relationship between allergy of the nose and sinus infections? It seems that I have one or the other all through the year.

Mr. E. L., Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. L.: There is a close relationship between the two, even though one or the other can exist independently.

A person with an allergic condition sneezes repeatedly in an effort to expel the irritating foreign substance. The nose becomes congested and there is then a watery discharge from the nose.

The appearance of the lining of the nose is readily identified with allergy.

Infections of the sinuses are caused by some germ or bacteria that invades the sinuses. Here, too, swelling of the tissues and discharge becomes prominent.

The difference between allergy and infection is that pus is formed in sinus infections, whereas in allergy there is no pus.

The relationship between allergy and sinus infections is this. The allergic nose, with a warm, watery discharge, is a perfect medium for germs to grow and flourish. The result is that sinus infections seem to occur more frequently in noses that are highly allergic.

X-rays of the sinuses, culture of the nasal secretion and smears for special eosinophile cells help establish the diagnosis of one or both existing conditions.

I have a tendency to get ingrown toenails that really hurt. How can this be prevented?

Mr. R. R. R., La.

Dear Mr. B.: With recurrent ingrown toenails you must, of course, know that effort must be made to prevent the edge of the nail from digging into the skin.

For this reason, it is suggested that nails be cut out straight across, rather than shaped.

Most important, after the nail is cut, a tiny piece of cotton should be tucked securely under the corners of the nail. In this way the nail can grow over the cotton, rather than into the toe.

Pressure by poorly fitting, tight shoes may be one of the reasons for your problem.

See Americans Eating Less Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will be eating less food this year than they have in eight years, the Agriculture Department now predicts.

"All of (the drop) is in livestock products," said Anthony E. Gallo, one of the economists who puts out the quarterly national food situation report for the department's Economic Research Service.

"And virtually all of that is in pork and in poultry," he added.

The agency had been projecting a 1 per cent decline in consumption for 1975 up until Tuesday, when the summary for the Sept. 4 situation report was written.

It has now raised that to 1.5 per cent below last year's level.

In both 1973 and 1974 retail food prices over the course or the year rose 14.5 per cent above the previous year's average.

This year, USDA foresees an over-all increase of 9 per cent over 1974 — with most of it already having occurred in May, June and July with an explosion in meat prices that continues for pork.

In 1973, a springtime consumers meat boycott that preceded food price controls and sharp locations in the markets sent the per capita food consumption number down from the 103.8 peak of 1972 to 102.1. The chart uses a base of 100, representing the amount of food consumed per person in 1967.

If the agency's new estimate is correct, and Gallo was quick to point out it is subject to change, the index would come out at 100.96 for 1975, down from last year's recovery level of 102.5.

The reason has as much to do with supply as price, the Outlook and Situation Board said.

"Supplies of meat, particularly pork and poultry products, have been severely constricted this year because of tight supplies and high costs for livestock feeds, resulting from the drought-reduced harvest of feed grains and soybeans in 1974," it said.

Animal-products consumption last year was largely responsible for the upswing. Use of crop products declined then and is expected to fall again fractionally.

During the April-June quarter this year, spending by consumers in restaurants and food vending machines rose 4 per cent, or $1.5 billion over the first quarter, the board said, while total expenditures for food at home rose only 1.4 per cent.

Even under the earlier decline estimates, Economic Research Service had foreseen the smallest amount of pork consumption in 40 years.

Economic Indicators Rise Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today its index to anticipate future trends in the economy advanced for the fifth consecutive month in July.

The Commerce Department said its index of leading indicators, a composite of a dozen individual economic measures, climbed 1.7 per cent in July, putting the index figure 11.5 per cent ahead of its low point last February.

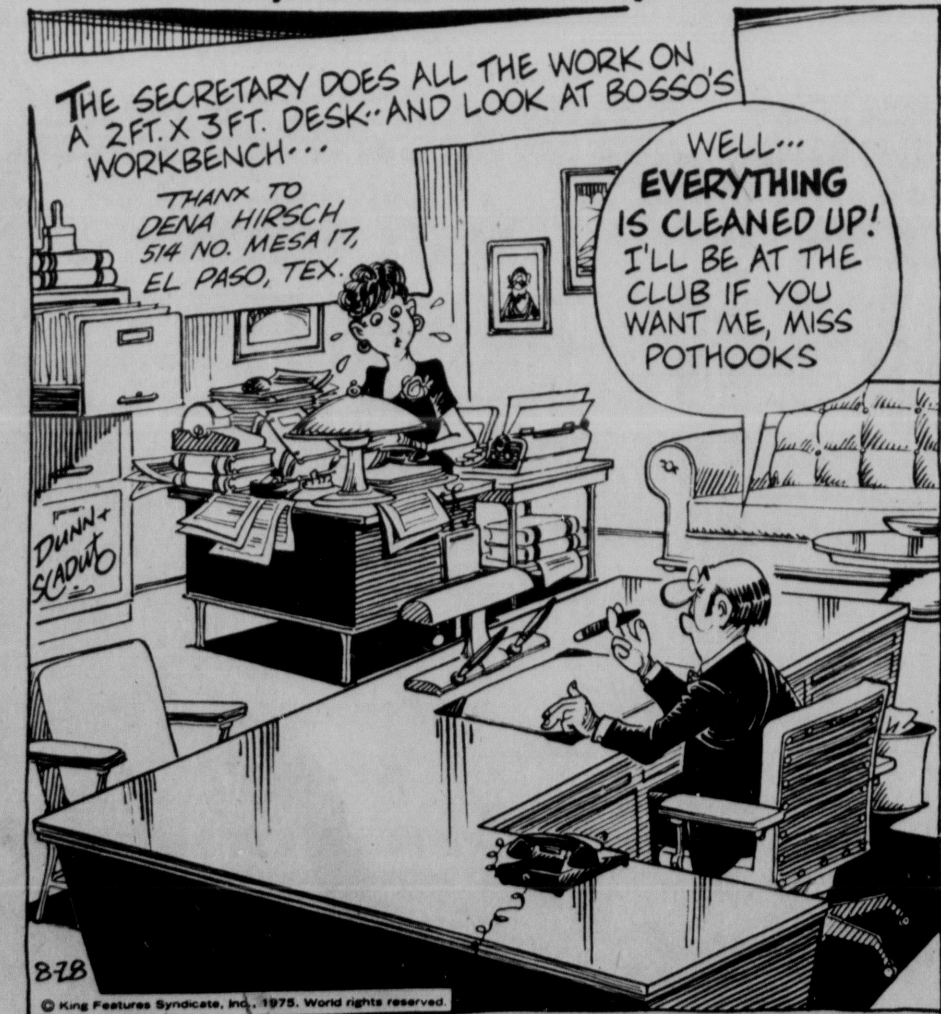

The advance, combined with a revision of June's advance from its originally reported 1.9 per cent rise to a 2.9 per cent increase, signaled continuing recovery in the economy, the department said.

It said the strongest upward influence in the index in July was a heavier volume of new orders for consumer products and raw materials.

That category advanced 7 per cent. In all, 7 of the 10 individual statistics available when the July index was computed advanced. Three of the components declined and two were not available for compilation.

The strongest downward influence in the composite was a 1 per cent decline in the nation's money supply. Also exerting a downward influence were higher prices for key raw materials and reduced spending on factories and equipment.

With recurrent ingrown toenails you must, of course, know that effort must be made to prevent the edge of the nail from digging into the skin.

For this reason, it is suggested that nails be cut out straight across, rather than shaped.

Most important, after the nail is cut, a tiny piece of cotton should be tucked securely under the corners of the nail. In this way the nail can grow over the cotton, rather than into the toe.

Pressure by poorly fitting, tight shoes may be one of the reasons for your problem.

Sixty applications were filed with Superintendent Frank Fischer for the position of principal of Circleville High School. Elmer E. Reger, formerly of New Philadelphia, received the superintendent's backing and the job. Reger had recently been hired as director of athletics.

Plans for a modern concrete swimming pool were being considered by Cliff Miller, owner of Sippo Park on Route 23 south of Circleville.

City fathers granted the county use of a small tract of land near the Island Road river bridge for a new dog pound. County commissioners asked for use of the land after numerous complaints were made about the current site on the west end of the Main St. bridge. The 3½ acres had long been used for burying dead animals that had been found on city streets.

See Americans Eating Less Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will be eating less food this year than they have in eight years, the Agriculture Department now predicts. "All of (the drop) is in livestock products," said Anthony E. Gallo, one of the economists who puts out the quarterly national food situation report for the department's Economic Research Service.

"And virtually all of that is in pork and in poultry," he added.

The agency had been projecting a 1 per cent decline in consumption for 1975 up until Tuesday, when the summary for the Sept. 4 situation report was written.

It has now raised that to 1.5 per cent below last year's level.

In both 1973 and 1974 retail food prices over the course of the year rose 14.5 per cent above the previous year's average.

This year, USDA foresees an over-all increase of 9 per cent over 1974 — with most of it already having occurred in May, June and July with an explosion in meat prices that continues for pork.

In 1973, a springtime consumers meat boycott that preceded food price controls and sharp locations in the markets sent the per capita food consumption number down from the 103.8 peak of 1972 to 102.1. The chart uses a base of 100, representing the amount of food consumed per person in 1967.

If the agency's new estimate is correct, and Gallo was quick to point out it is subject to change, the index would come out at 100.96 for 1975, down from last year's recovery level of 102.5.

The reason has as much to do with supply as price, the Outlook and Situation Board said.

"Supplies of meat, particularly pork and poultry products, have been severely constricted this year because of tight supplies and high costs for livestock feeds, resulting from the drought-reduced harvest of feed grains and soybeans in 1974," it said.

Animal-products consumption last year was largely responsible for the upswing. Use of crop products declined then and is expected to fall again fractionally.

During the April-June quarter this year, spending by consumers in restaurants and food vending machines rose 4 per cent, or $1.5 billion over the first quarter, the board said, while total expenditures for food at home rose only 1.4 per cent.

Even under the earlier decline estimates, Economic Research Service had foreseen the smallest amount of pork consumption in 40 years.

Economic Indicators Rise Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today its index to anticipate future trends in the economy advanced for the fifth consecutive month in July.

The Commerce Department said its index of leading indicators, a composite of a dozen individual economic measures, climbed 1.7 per cent in July, putting the index figure 11.5 per cent ahead of its low point last February.

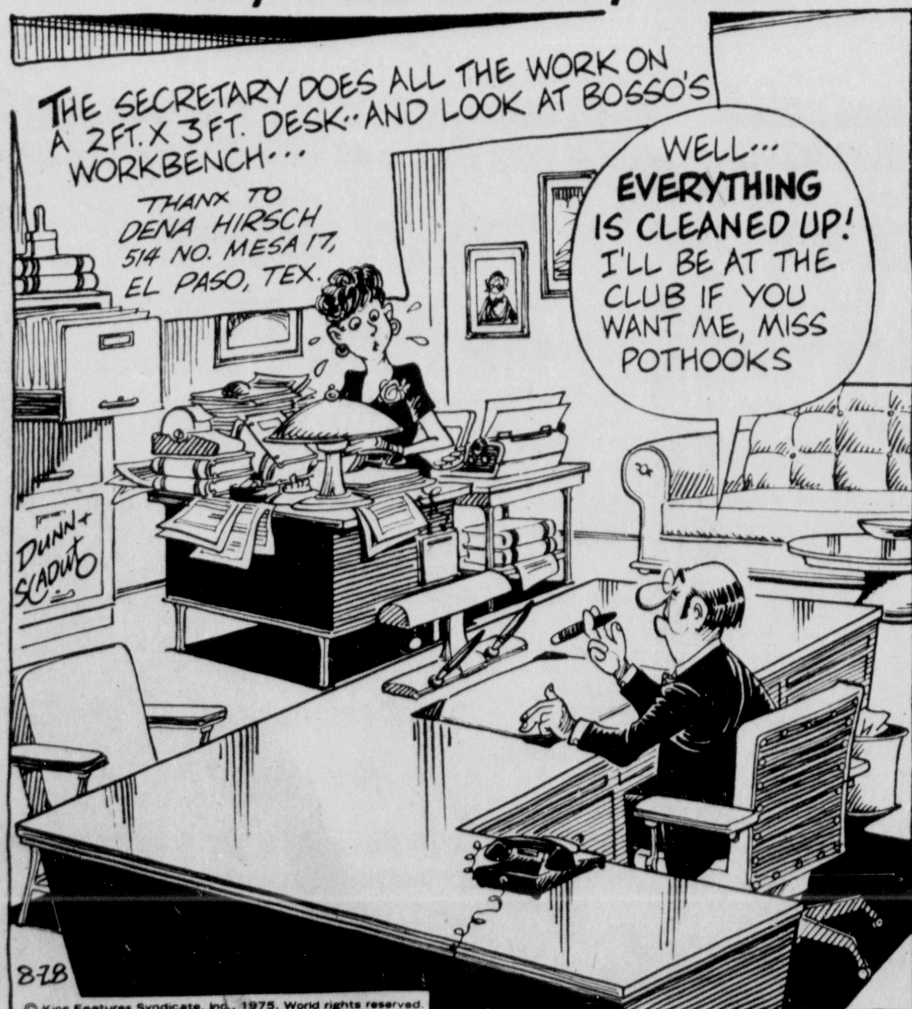

The advance, combined with a revision of June's advance from its originally reported 1.9 per cent rise to a 2.9 per cent increase, signaled continuing recovery in the economy, the department said.

It said the strongest upward influence in the index in July was a heavier volume of new orders for consumer products and raw materials.

That category advanced 7 per cent. In all, 7 of the 10 individual statistics available when the July index was computed advanced. Three of the components declined and two were not available for compilation.

The strongest downward influence in the composite was a 1 per cent decline in the nation's money supply. Also exerting a downward influence were higher prices for key raw materials and reduced spending on factories and equipment.

They'll Do It Every Time

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Son Should Leave Mom

DEAR ABBY: I am a 48-year-old man who has been divorced for six years. I live with my mother, so I don't have to worry about my meals or laundry.

My problem is my ex-wife. I cannot stand the sight of her. She calls my mother nearly every day, and my mother invites her over to the house.

My mother knows how I feel about my ex but she says if she isn't nice to her, she won't get to see her grandchildren.

I don't buy that because my divorce decree states that I can see my children whenever I wish. I love my children and have had them for holidays and weekends, yet I don't include my "ex."

Sometimes I think my mother lets my "ex" hang around here just to make me uncomfortable.

What do you think, Abby? I'd appreciate your advice.

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: If you can swing it financially, move out of Mother's house and get your own place. Then, you can pick up your children and take them to your mother's without having your wife come along. As long as you're living in your mother's home, she can invite whomever she wants to visit.

DEAR ABBY: Mary, the wife of my deceased brother, is 69, and I am a 67-year-old bachelor. Mary lives 1,500 miles from me, and she has often proposed that I come and visit her—she has a house with two bedrooms.

Now Mary's widowed sister says that it would not be proper to sleep at Mary's house.

What do you think?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I think Mary's widowed sister is jealous.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I can't ask even my doctor, so I'm asking you.

I am 36 and have been chewing tobacco since I was four-years-old. What I want to know is whether it is dangerous to my health.

Lately, I have been having fainting spells, am short of breath and dizzy. I have been to the best doctors, and they haven't been able to find anything wrong with me.

I never had the courage to tell any of them that I've been chewing tobacco all these years.

Will you ask your doctor if it's harmful and let me know? If it is, I can cut it out because I really don't have to have it. Thank you. I am a woman, if that matters.

CHEWS IN DELAWARE

DEAR CHEWS: My doctor says that the tobacco-chewing habit CAN be harmful to one's health, but he can't diagnose a case without seeing the patient. (Go back to YOUR doctor and spit it out—the truth—not the tobacco.)

News Media 'Used' By Rhodes?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—By his own admission, Gov. James A. Rhodes got an unexpected lift from the Ohio news corps in the petition drive to qualify his four bond proposals for the November ballot.

Reporters didn't circulate the petitions, of course, but Rhodes made it clear that news stories suggesting the drive was lagging provided the campaign with a strong shot in the arm.

No one probably ever will know if there was ever any doubt that the governor's organizers would gather the required 307,000 signatures.

But, in mid-July, Rhodes' aides began to "worry" publicly.

The drive was behind schedule, they fretted. The original goal of one million signatures appeared unrealistic. Would there be sufficient cushion to allow for names ruled invalid and struck from the list by election officials?

Sure enough, newspaper stories began to appear reporting that the drive was not going well and was, perhaps, even in serious trouble.

Rhodes was quoted at the mid-western governors' conference in Cincinnati as saying he would attempt to put the issues on the June, 1976, primary ballot, if he was unable to reach his goal for November.

For the record, Rhodes' assistants remained publicly optimistic that they would gather at least the minimum number of signatures by the Aug. 6 deadline.

However, Keith McNamara, chairman of Ohioans for Jobs and Progress, the petition committee, steadfastly refused to give a running count of the number of signatures collected.

Thomas J. Moyer, the governor's executive assistant, speculated that campaigners were sitting on the petitions, waiting for large blocks to accumulate before turning them in.

When the deadline arrived, there was 65-year-old Gov. Rhodes personally delivering boxes of petitions containing the names of more than a half million Ohioans to the secretary of state. He was over the top.

Later, at a news conference, a smiling Rhodes thanked reporters for their help and the great job they had done. Several major papers had run stories about the supposedly sputtering petition drive, and Rhodes used the publicity to spur his workers to greater heights.

Far from being flattered, some newsmen felt they had been taken in as unwitting boosters for a political campaign.

Still ahead, is the campaign to convince Ohioans to vote for the proposed constitutional amendments on the Nov. 4 ballot.

The ballot package Rhodes has described as depressionproof calls for: —a $2.75 billion bond issue to fund a massive program of urban capital improvements. The issue would be financed by a seven-tenths of a cent increase in the state sales tax.

—a $1.75 billion transportation bond issue to be financed by a nine-tenths of a cent increase in the seven-cent-a-gallon state gasoline tax.

—tax abatements for industry locating or expanding in Ohio, and increased authority for the state housing development board to back loans for home building.

MRS. DONALD C. DENNEWITZ

Miss Sandra Sue Greenlee, Donald C. Dennewitz Are Wed

The wedding of Miss Sandra Sue Greenlee and Mr. Donald C. Dennewitz took place 7:30 p.m., Aug. 12, at Calvary Lutheran Church in Chillicothe.

The Rev. Mr. Gerhardt Mengers performed the double ring service before the altar flanked with seven branch candelabra holding white tapers. Lighted tapers and candelabra were also at the kneeling bench.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Struckman, Route 2, Circleville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dennewitz, 481 Church St., Chillicothe.

Mrs. Eleanor Lang, organist, of Chillicothe presented a program of music preceding the ceremony. Included in selections were "Theme From Romeo And Juliet," "O, Perfect Love" and "We've Only Just Begun."

The bride was given in marriage by her step-father, Mr. Harold Struckman. For her wedding she wore a floor length gown of ivory satin with a long chapel train. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and long tapered sleeves ending in points over her hands. The bride's mantilla veil was of handmade Belgian lace and she carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies with baby's breath and long white streamers. The gown was worn by the bridegroom's mother at her wedding.

Miss Marla Dennewitz, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor in a floor length gown of flowered pastel print with bell sleeves. She carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Bridesmaid was Miss Toye Lynn Agin, niece of the bride. She wore a full length sleeveless A-line gown of pastel blue and carried a bouquet identical to that of the honor attendant.

Mr. Jim Osborne was best man and ushers were Mr. Don Struckman, step-brother of the bride, and Mr. Tony Ackley.

The bride's mother wore a formal length blue gown trimmed with gold. The bridegroom's mother chose a street length pink knit dress trimmed with white lace. They both wore corsages of white carnations.

A reception in the Community Center of the church immediately followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered by a white cloth with silver bells and centered with a three tiered cake trimmed with white swans and yellow and white roses, and topped with bride and groom figures.

Hostesses were Mrs. Michael Struckman, Mrs. Al Thome and Miss Nina Lewis.

As the couple left for a wedding trip to Sandusky and Cedar Point, the bride wore a black sleeveless dress trimmed in gold and matching accessories. They now reside at 410 W. Main St., Chillicothe.

The new Mrs. Dennewitz graduated from Circleville High School, served five years with the WACS and received medical technician training at Walter Reid Hospital in Washington D. C. She is employed at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Chillicothe.

Mr. Dennewitz, a graduate of Chillicothe High School, served two years with the U.S. Navy and is a member of the Navy Reserves. He also is employed at the VA Hospital in Chillicothe.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Circleville, Kingston and Orient, Ohio; Tucson, Ariz. and South Dakota.

Miss Jacque Rose Fowler Bride Of Randy Dollison

MRS. RANDY DUANE DOLLISON

Pontius United Methodist Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Jacque Rose Fowler and Mr. Randy Duane Dollison. The Rev. Frank Ferguson performed the single ring ceremony 2:30 p.m., Aug. 10th.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Pauline Mumaw, 446 Watt St., and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dollison, Route 5.

The bride was escorted to the altar by Mr. Ralph Withers, a friend of the bride's family. For her wedding she selected a white floor length gown trimmed in lace. The hooped skirt was enhanced with a lace panel down the front. The lace covered bodice featured a high neckline and long lace sleeves. The bride wore a pearl encrusted tiara holding a shoulder length veil of silk illusion. Her silk train, lined with lace, flowed softly to chapel length and she carried a bouquet of daisies atop a white Bible.

Miss Crystal Harding was maid of honor in a floor length gown of pink and blue floral print. Bridesmaids, Miss Penny Dollison and Miss Tammy Dollison, nieces of the bridegroom, were attired as the honor attendant in blue.

Mr. Terry Cromley performed the duties of best man.

The bride's mother wore a blue floor length gown with cape sleeves and the bridegroom's mother chose a predominately blue patchwork formal length gown.

A reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents followed the ceremony. The three tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom, was a gift of Aurora Fowler and Chrystal Harding, friend and sister respectively of the bride.

The new Mrs. Dollison is a student at Ross County Vocational School. Mr. Dollison, a 1974 graduate of Logan Elm High School, is employed at Loroco Paper Mill in Lancaster.

Showers complimenting the bride before the wedding were hosted by Mrs. Charles Dollison and Mrs. John Parrett. The couple now resides at 435 1/2 Lancaster Pike, Circleville.

Colonial Writers Often Mainly After Money

EDITOR'S NOTE — From Michael Wigglesworth, who outsold Milton, to Noah Webster, the American colonies were rich in literary figures. Though many, alas, including Poor Richard, endeavor'd at first not so much to make a revolution as to make a bundle — or save a soul.

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The independence which the American colonies won in the Revolution spurred a trend toward independence in literature, until then dominated by religious writings and political tracts.

Many books and pamphlets were published in the colonial era, but they had none of the impact abroad which American literature was to develop in the past century.

The first men who made major contributions were all born after the Revolution: Washington Irving in 1783, James Fenimore Cooper in 1789, William Cullen Bryant in 1794. Ralph Waldo Emerson, Nathaniel Hawthorne and Herman Melville weren't born until the early years of the 19th century.

The American colonists wrote journals and histories, sermons to

Vanzant Named New Parks Chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ralph A. Vanzant was appointed Wednesday as the chief of the Division of Parks and Recreation, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Vanzant, who worked in the department's Office of Employees Services, joined the natural resources department in January 1969. He served as assistant chief of the division from May 1969 to September 1971.

teach moral lessons and pamphlets to argue political issues. Their writings imitated popular European styles.

During the 1700s, preoccupation with religious subjects gave way to a concern with political matters. After Great Britain imposed the Stamp Act in 1765, dozens of protests arose from all parts of the colonies — some of them with literary merit.

Some of the earliest political essays started to appear in a Philadelphia newspaper in 1767 as "Letters from a Farmer in Pennsylvania." They were recognized as the work of John Dickinson, a prosperous and cultured Philadelphian, then 35.

Dickinson advocated moderation. "We never can be made an independent people, except it be by Great-Britain herself," he wrote.

His letters were printed in all colonial newspapers, collected and published separately here and in Europe. Except for Benjamin Franklin, who wrote clever prefaces for two London editions, Dickinson was for a time the colonies' most renowned writer. When war broke out, he took up arms.

As in so many aspects of colonial life, Franklin left his mark on literature. He also advocated moderation at first, later criticized British policies in a pamphlet called "Rules for Reducing a Great Empire to a Small One."

His "Poor Richard's Almanac," published yearly from 1733 to 1758, was one of his most popular publications. "I endeavor'd to make it both entertaining and useful," he wrote, "and it accordingly came to be in such demand, that I reap'd considerable profit for it vending annually near ten thousand."

The versatile Franklin wrote many political satires — advice to a young man on the choice of a mistress; a yarn about whales leaping up the falls of Niagara like so many salmon.

With Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and others, he helped draft the Declaration of Independence — a work of literature as well as a political affirmation.

Jefferson was also a writer of great distinction, but his work survives mostly in his voluminous letters.

More violently revolutionary than Franklin was Thomas Paine, whose "Common Sense" was published on Jan. 10, 1776, while George Washington was pinning down British troops occupying Boston. Washington praised its "sound doctrine and unanswerable reasoning."

Copies were sold widely throughout the colonies, and Paine later wrote a new series, at the time of Valley Forge, starting with the words, "These are the times that try men's souls." After the war, he was tried in absentia for treason in England.

The new Constitution stirred sharp debate after the war. It was defended in a brilliant series of essays called "The Federalist" written by Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and John Jay.

There were successful writers earlier. Michael Wigglesworth, a gloomy Calvinist born in 1631, wrote "Day of Doom," which is little more than doggerel about sin and salvation. Within a year it sold more copies in America and England than did Milton's "Paradise Lost" in twice the time — a copy for every 20 persons in New England.

Three generations of Mathers — Richard, Increase and Cotton — were influential theologians and teachers. Increase published some 130 titles on subjects ranging from smallpox and politics to Indians and earthquakes.

His son Cotton Mather published 450 titles, in some defending the Salem witchcraft trials. His masterwork, in two volumes of some 1,300 pages, was "Magnalia Christi Americana" — an ecclesiastical history of New England.

A young schoolmaster in Goshen, N.Y., Noah Webster, called for liberation of American literature from British authority, saying the national honor demanded "a system of our own, in language as well as in government."

Webster's blue-backed spelling book in time and various editions, sold tens of millions of copies, becoming one of the best selling books ever.

Platts Retire As Teachers

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Grover and Virginia Platt, a husband-and-wife team of history professors at Bowling Green State University, will retire this week to allow younger teachers to take over.

"Our society in many fields, including education, is at the point where we've got to vacate places to open the system to younger people," said Platt, 61, who has taught since 1946.

His 62-year-old wife joined the faculty the following year.

Retirement should begin at age 60 and should be "a positive and creative thing," he contends. "It can't be that if you wait until you have no energy or are in poor health."

For the Platts, retirement will mean travel, possibly to Australia, and to see relatives in California and Canada.

Reward Offered In Sohio Slaying

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) has posted a reward of up to $10,000 for information leading to arrest and conviction of anyone involved in the robbery-slaying of John Neff.

The 60-year-old service station operator was abducted from his Madison Township station on Aug. 22. His body was found five miles from the station. He had been shot three times in the legs and once in the chest, Sohio said Wednesday in announcing the reward.

The Sohio spokesman said the company estimated $100 was taken from Neff's wallet.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The independence which the American colonies won in the Revolution spurred a trend toward independence in literature, until then dominated by religious writings and political tracts. Many books and pamphlets were published in the colonial era, but they had none of the impact abroad which American literature was to develop in the past century.

The first men who made major contributions were all born after the Revolution: Washington Irving in 1783, James Fenimore Cooper in 1789, William Cullen Bryant in 1794. Ralph Waldo Emerson, Nathaniel Hawthorne and Herman Melville weren't born until the early years of the 19th century.

The American colonists wrote journals and histories, sermons to teach moral lessons and pamphlets to argue political issues. Their writings imitated popular European styles.

During the 1700s, preoccupation with religious subjects gave way to a concern with political matters. After Great Britain imposed the Stamp Act in 1765, dozens of protests arose from all parts of the colonies — some of them with literary merit.

Some of the earliest political essays started to appear in a Philadelphia newspaper in 1767 as "Letters from a Farmer in Pennsylvania." They were recognized as the work of John Dickinson, a prosperous and cultured Philadelphian, then 35.

Dickinson advocated moderation. "We never can be made an independent people, except it be by Great-Britain herself," he wrote.

His letters were printed in all colonial newspapers, collected and published separately here and in Europe. Except for Benjamin Franklin, who wrote clever prefaces for two London editions, Dickinson was for a time the colonies' most renowned writer. When war broke out, he took up arms.

As in so many aspects of colonial life, Franklin left his mark on literature. He also advocated moderation at first, later criticized British policies in a pamphlet called "Rules for Reducing a Great Empire to a Small One."

His "Poor Richard's Almanac," published yearly from 1733 to 1758, was one of his most popular publications. "I endeavor'd to make it both entertaining and useful," he wrote, "and it accordingly came to be in such demand, that I reap'd considerable profit for it vending annually near ten thousand."

The versatile Franklin wrote many political satires — advice to a young man on the choice of a mistress; a yarn about whales leaping up the falls of Niagara like so many salmon.

With Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and others, he helped draft the Declaration of Independence — a work of literature as well as a political affirmation.

Jefferson was also a writer of great distinction, but his work survives mostly in his voluminous letters.

More violently revolutionary than Franklin was Thomas Paine, whose "Common Sense" was published on Jan. 10, 1776, while George Washington was pinning down British troops occupying Boston. Washington praised its "sound doctrine and unanswerable reasoning."

Copies were sold widely throughout the colonies, and Paine later wrote a new series, at the time of Valley Forge, starting with the words, "These are the times that try men's souls." After the war, he was tried in absentia for treason in England.

The new Constitution stirred sharp debate after the war. It was defended in a brilliant series of essays called "The Federalist" written by Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and John Jay.

There were successful writers earlier. Michael Wigglesworth, a gloomy Calvinist born in 1631, wrote "Day of Doom," which is little more than doggerel about sin and salvation. Within a year it sold more copies in America and England than did Milton's "Paradise Lost" in twice the time — a copy for every 20 persons in New England.

Three generations of Mathers — Richard, Increase and Cotton — were influential theologians and teachers. Increase published some 130 titles on subjects ranging from smallpox and politics to Indians and earthquakes.

His son Cotton Mather published 450 titles, in some defending the Salem witchcraft trials. His masterwork, in two volumes of some 1,300 pages, was "Magnalia Christi Americana" — an ecclesiastical history of New England.

A young schoolmaster in Goshen, N.Y., Noah Webster, called for liberation of American literature from British authority, saying the national honor demanded "a system of our own, in language as well as in government."

Webster's blue-backed spelling book in time and various editions, sold tens of millions of copies, becoming one of the best selling books ever.

Platts Retire As Teachers

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Grover and Virginia Platt, a husband-and-wife team of history professors at Bowling Green State University, will retire this week to allow younger teachers to take over.

"Our society in many fields, including education, is at the point where we've got to vacate places to open the system to younger people," said Platt, 61, who has taught since 1946.

His 62-year-old wife joined the faculty the following year.

Retirement should begin at age 60 and should be "a positive and creative thing," he contends. "It can't be that if you wait until you have no energy or are in poor health."

For the Platts, retirement will mean travel, possibly to Australia, and to see relatives in California and Canada.

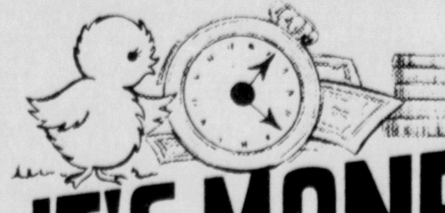

Reward Offered In Sohio Slaying

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) has posted a reward of up to $10,000 for information leading to arrest and conviction of anyone involved in the robbery-slaying of John Neff.

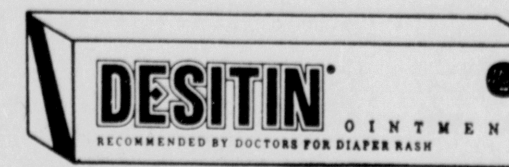

The 60-year-old service station operator was abducted from his Madison Township station on Aug. 22. His body was found five miles from the station. He had been shot three times in the legs and once in the chest, Sohio said Wednesday in announcing the reward.

The Sohio spokesman said the company estimated $100 was taken from Neff's wallet.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame has agreed to relinquish the major share of the city's fiscal controls to the state in return for a massive infusion of state loans to avert city default on its debts.

Although Beame denied that his fiscal powers were being further eroded, the agreement, in effect, gave Gov. Hugh L. Carey and State Controller Arthur Levitt full control over the city's budget revenue estimates

OHIO ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY PUBLIC NOTICE OF THE ISSUANCE OF PROPOSED NATIONAL POLLUTION DISCHARGE ELIMINATION SYSTEM PERMIT FOR THE SMALL-LOW DISCHARGE(S) TO STATE WATERS

The following statements apply to each permit listed below:

On the basis of preliminary staff review and application of standards and regulations, the Director of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency has issued a proposed permit for the following discharge subject to certain effluent conditions and special conditions. The proposed permit is tentative but shall become final on the effective date unless (1) an adjudication hearing is requested, (2) the Director withdraws and/or a request for notice of further actions concerning the permit. All communications timely received will be considered in the final formulation of the permit. If significant public interest is shown a public meeting will be held prior to finalization of the permit. Within thirty (30) days of the issuance of the proposed permit any officer of an agency of the state or of a political subdivision, acting in his representative capacity or any person aggrieved or adversely affected by issuance of it may request an adjudication hearing by submitting a written request in accordance with Ohio Revised Code Section 3745.07. Following the finalization of the permit by the Director, any person who puts on such an adjudication hearing may appeal to the Environmental Board of Review. All comments or statements on the proposed permit and all requests for notice of further actions should be submitted in person or by mail to: NPDES Permit Records Section, Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, P. O. Box 1049, 361 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43216. Applications, fact sheets, proposed permits including proposed effluent limitations, special conditions, comments received and other documents are available for inspection and may be copied at a cost of 15 cents per page at the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency at the above address anytime between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Copies of public notices are available at no charge at the same address. Requests for and communications concerning adjudication hearings and public meetings should be addressed to: Legal Records Section, Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, P. O. Box 1049, Columbus, Ohio 43216, (614) 466-6037. All communications should specify the OEPA permit number and public notice number.

Mailing lists are maintained for persons or groups who desire to receive public notice of proposed and final actions taken on applications for dischargers located in the state or in certain geographical areas. Persons or groups may have their names put on such a list by making a written request to the NPDES Permit Records Section. Persons or groups may also request copies of fact sheets, applications or other documents pertaining to a specific application. Date of Issuance of Proposed Permit: August 19, 1975. and thus the power to control the city's expenditures.

The unprecedented agreement was announced Tuesday night by the mayor and Carey at a hastily called news conference.

Carey said the state-city agreement would set up a three-member panel composed of Carey, Beame and Levitt to oversee the city's revenue estimates. The plan will be submitted to a special session of the state legislature for approval.

Although Carey insisted the plan had not been fully worked out and only vaguely described its outlines, questions by newsmen brought out these points:

—If the legislature approves, Levitt will float state securities at low interest rates enjoyed by the state in comparison with the exceedingly high rates charged the city.

—The borrowing powers of the state's Municipal Assistance Corp. (MAC) will be expanded, and banks and other financial institutions will be persuaded to help bail the city out of its fiscal dilemma through November.

—In return, the Carey-Levitt-Beame panel will review the city's budget revenue estimates and have the final say as to what they actually are.

Despite state control of the three-man panel, Beame insisted, "We are not giving up home rule powers."

"I'm completely in accord with this plan. It represents a state involvement in the city of New York. I think it is a good omen for the city."

Carey said, "This will not involve the powers of the mayor, his expenditures, his priorities or the government of the city."

But the tentative agreement represented a further lessening of the mayor's fiscal powers.

The erosion began last June when MAC was created to refinance the city's short-term debt and to ease its cash flow problems.

Beame reluctantly agreed to MAC and, prodded by MAC officials, later imposed a wage freeze on municipal labor unions that had refused to forego a wage increase won in contracts negotiated a year ago.

Festival Set By The Way International

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Fifteen thousand participants were expected this weekend for the Rock of Ages '75 Christian Music Festival sponsored by the group, The Way International.

The Way is a 33-year-old biblical research and teaching ministry with headquarters in nearby New Knoxville and workers in every state and 33 nations.

It concerns itself with the accuracy of the bible. It is not a church nor a denomination of a religious sect.

The Way will train this week 2,000 Word Over the World ambassadors who serve for one year on college campuses, in the armed forces, in hospitals and in communities nationwide teaching the group's principles.

Another 1,000 ambassadors will be honored Saturday when they return from one year assignments.

Today, 1,500 graduates of the Way's "Advanced Class on Power for Abundant Living" will be hosted by Dr. Victor Paul Wierwille, founder and president of the group.

After that, the Rock of Ages '75 music festival will officially open, with a four-hour stage show.

The next night is international night, with addresses by representatives of Great Britain, Africa, Venezuela and Australia.

Other features of the festival include an afternoon gospel, country and bluegrass-style bands daily on the stage and in the coffee house, and two separate three-act dramas.

State Assumes More Powers To Help Out New York City

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame has agreed to relinquish the major share of the city's fiscal controls to the state in return for a massive infusion of state loans to avert city default on its debts.

Although Beame denied that his fiscal powers were being further eroded, the agreement, in effect, gave Gov. Hugh L. Carey and State Controller Arthur Levitt full control over the city's budget revenue estimates

OHIO ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY
PUBLIC NOTICE OF THE ISSUANCE OF PROPOSED NATIONAL POLLUTION DISCHARGE ELIMINATION SYSTEM PERMIT(S) TO ALLOW DISCHARGE(S) TO STATE WATERS

The following statements apply to each permit listed below. On the basis of preliminary staff review and application of standards and regulations, the Director of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency has issued a proposed permit for the following discharge subject to certain effluent conditions and special conditions. The proposed permit is tentative but shall become final on the effective date unless (1) an adjudication hearing is requested, (2) the Director withdraws and revises the proposed permit after consideration of the record of a public meeting, or (3) upon disapproval by the Administrator of the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. Within thirty (30) days of publication of this notice any person may submit written comments, a statement as to why the proposed permit should be modified, a request for a public meeting on the proposed permit and/or a request for notice of further actions concerning the permit. All communications timely received will be considered in the final formulation of the permit. If significant public interest is shown a public meeting will be held prior to finalization of the permit.

Within thirty (30) days of the issuance of the proposed permit any officer of an agency of the state or of a political subdivision, acting in his representative capacity or any person aggrieved or adversely affected by issuance of the permit may request an adjudication hearing by submitting a written request in accordance with Ohio Revised Code Section 3746.07. Following the finalization of the permit by the Director, any person who was a party to an adjudication hearing may appeal to the Environmental Protection Agency, P. O. Box 1049, 361 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43216. Applications, fact sheets, proposed permits including proposed effluent limitations, special conditions, comments received and other documents are available for inspection and may be copied at a cost of 15 cents per page at the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency at the above address anytime between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Copies of public notices are available at no charge at the same address. Requests for and communications concerning adjudication hearings and public meetings should be addressed to: Legal Records Section, Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, P. O. Box 1049, Columbus, Ohio 43216, (614) 466-6037. All correspondence should specify the OEPA permit number and public notice number.

Mailing lists are maintained for persons or groups who desire to receive public notice of proposed and final actions taken on applications for discharges located in the state or in certain geographical areas. Persons or groups may have their names put on such a list by making a written request to the NEPA Permit Records Section. Persons or groups may also request copies of fact sheets, applications or other documents pertaining to a specific application.

and thus the power to control the city's expenditures.

The unprecedented agreement was announced Tuesday night by the mayor and Carey at a hastily called news conference.

Carey said the state-city agreement would set up a three-member panel composed of Carey, Beame and Levitt to oversee the city's revenue estimates. The plan will be submitted to a special session of the state legislature for approval.

Although Carey insisted the plan had not been fully worked out and only vaguely described its outlines, questions by newsmen brought out these points:

—If the legislature approves, Levitt will float state securities at low interest rates enjoyed by the state in comparison with the exceedingly high rates charged the city.

—The borrowing powers of the state's Municipal Assistance Corp. (MAC) will be expanded, and banks and other financial institutions will be persuaded to help bail the city out of its fiscal dilemma through November.

—In return, the Carey-Levitt-Beame panel will review the city's budget revenue estimates and have the final say as to what they actually are.

Despite state control of the three-man panel, Beame insisted, "We are not giving up home rule powers. "I'm completely in accord with this plan. It represents a state involvement in the city of New York. I think it is a good omen for the city."

Carey said, "This will not involve the powers of the mayor, his expenditures, his priorities or the government of the city."

But the tentative agreement represented a further lessening of the mayor's fiscal powers.

The erosion began last June when MAC was created to refinance the city's short-term debt and to ease its cash flow problems.

Beame reluctantly agreed to MAC and, prodded by MAC officials, later imposed a wage freeze on municipal labor unions that had refused to forego a wage increase won in contracts negotiated a year ago.

Festival Set By The Way International

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Fifteen thousand participants were expected this weekend for the Rock of Ages '75 Christian Music Festival sponsored by the group, The Way International.

The Way is a 33-year-old biblical research and teaching ministry with headquarters in nearby New Knoxville and workers in every state and 33 nations.

It concerns itself with the accuracy of the bible. It is not a church nor a denomination of a religious sect.

The Way will train this week 2,000 Word Over the World ambassadors who serve for one year on college campuses, in the armed forces, in hospitals and in communities nationwide teaching the group's principles.

Another 1,000 ambassadors will be honored Saturday when they return from one year assignments.

Today, 1,500 graduates of the Way's "Advanced Class on Power for Abundant Living" will be hosted by Dr. Victor Paul Wierwille, founder and president of the group.

After that, the Rock of Ages '75 music festival will officially open, with a four-hour stage show.

The next night is international night, with addresses by representatives of Great Britain, Africa, Venezuela and Australia.

Other features of the festival include an afternoon gospel, country and bluegrass-style bands daily on the stage and in the coffee house, and two separate three-act dramas.

Visitors were, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Beane. Not present were, Danny Darst, Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Darst, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Darst Jr., Tonia Rutter, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Franz, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Churchheus.

The Women's Society of the Laurel Hills Church held their regular meeting at the church on last Thursday evening, with the president, Mrs. William Williams presiding. Open song was "In Times Like These." Mrs. Robert Swepston was program leader. The lesson topic was "One Body with Many Functions." Her scripture reading was from Romans 12, 6 thru 8th verses. Mrs. O.V. McFadden was spiritual life leader. A report on camp meeting at Stoutsville was made by Mrs. E. F. Disbennett, Mrs. Jack Notestone and Rev. Winternute. The group discussed the harvest supper which will be held Oct. 9th. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Jack Notestone.

Refreshments were served to 17 members and two guests by the hostesses, Mrs. Ramon Bigham and Mrs. Maudie Thomas. Guests were Mrs. Mildred Bigham and Kim Thompson.

The cooks, substitute cooks, retired members and guests of the Logan Elm School District were entertained at the mobile home of Mrs. June Poling on Wednesday Aug. 20. The carry-in dinner was in fact as well as in name as the Victory Drive road was being tarred that day and the ladies had to leave their cars at the Laurel Hills church and walk back to the Poling retreat. A bountiful meal was enjoyed by 28 ladies. Later Mrs. Jewell Hinton, District Supervisor, conducted a brief business meeting.

Those who enjoyed the day included — Mrs. Gladys Hedges, Mrs. Virginia Lloyd, Mrs. Marcella Faigley, Mrs. Ada Steel, Mrs. Thelma Beavers, Mrs. Mildred Karshner, Mrs. Maudie Thomas, Mrs. Bernice Pennington, Mrs. Esther Collins, Mrs. Betty Weidlich, Mrs. Mary Nelson, Mrs. Geneve Hedges, Mrs. Pat McFarland, Mrs. Maude Hedges, Mrs. Robert Reid, Mrs. Mary Agin, Mrs. Barbara Woods, Mrs. Mary Beavers, Mrs. Bertha Wolfe, Mrs. Peggy Congrove, Mrs. Mary Fee, Mrs. Helen Stout, Mrs. Mary Dumm, Mrs. Hattie Karr.

Mrs. Violet Thompson and granddaughter, Kimberly Thompson; Mrs. Hinton and the hostess.

The ladies thought the walk out to their cars was good for them after eating so many good things at lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald (Pete) Poling have named their son born Aug. 13, Dana Burke. Mrs. Mildred Poling is the paternal grandmother. Dana makes her 35th grandchild.

Mrs. Clarence Maxson who underwent back surgery on Aug. 14 in Mt. Carmel Hospital is improving slowly. Her room number is 735.

Mrs. John (Shirley) Fortner has been a patient in Mercy Hospital, Columbus receiving treatment for a back problem.

Mrs. Nellie Finney Smith and son Dale of Williamsport were last Sunday afternoon callers of Miss Vira Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Dumm of Columbus visited Mr. and Mrs. Dick Karr Sunday afternoon. Dick worked for Curtis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dumm, in 1920 and helped take care of them during the flu epidemic.

Mr. and Mrs. Denny Drum recently spent three days with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Karshner and daughter Sandra of Wadsworth, O. Mrs. Karshner (Jean Ruth) has been ill.

Rudolph Ebert who recently suffered a heart attack has been a patient in Doctor's Hospital, not University, as was reported last week. Sorry about that!

Stanley Noggle has returned home after being a patient in Berger Hospital for several days for observation and treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Fredrick of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Strous, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hartsaugh of Laurelville and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Smith of Circleville were supper guests of Kathleen Smith of Circleville.

Mrs. Burnell Karshner, Mrs. Arthur Steel and Mrs. Robert Reid attended the 39th annual meeting of the South Central Power Co. at Lancaster fairgrounds last Thursday.

Doc Fox took off into the "Big Blue Yonder" Friday evening to visit his grandson Jerry Cavinee and family and grandson Joe Cavinee of Kissimmee, Fla. He will return home with his daughter Mrs. Kenneth Cavinee and her daughter, Mrs. Bonita Greenlee who drove down to Florida last week.

Robert Reid called on Mrs. Sam Johnson last Wednesday. He also visited with Forrest VanFossen in Berger Hospital. On Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Reid called on their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sowers.

Mrs. Esther Reichelderfer of Columbus and her sister, Margaret Chilcote have returned from a short vacation in Canada.

Pension Plans Can't Pay Retirees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 1,000 private pension plans, more than had been expected, have reported that they are unable to pay benefits guaranteed to thousands of retired persons, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. said this week.

An additional 2,000 pension plans have been suspended since July 1, 1974, but are solvent and able to make all required payments of benefits to retirees, the corporation said.

For the 1,000 funds which are short of funds, the federal government must pick up the tab under the 1974 Employee Retirement Income Security Act.

The corporation, a creation of the federal government under the new law, is currently deciding how to take over administration of the suspended funds.

A spokesman said most of the terminated funds covered fewer than 50 employees.

Early estimates were that 1,200 not 3,000 funds would have to be administered by a bank appointed by the corporation, the spokesman said.

No estimate was available on the worth of the suspended pension funds, but the corporation said any bank chosen to administer them must be able to manage an account of $20 million, a figure likely to rise to $50 million "in the near future."

FFA And 4-H Scholarships Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A series of scholarships are being established for members of the Ohio 4-H and Future Farmers of America clubs by McDonald's System of Ohio, Inc.

The $3,500 in scholarships are funded by the sale of hamburgers by McDonald's at the 1975 Ohio State Fair.

Each scholarship will be worth $500 and can be used at most Ohio colleges, universities and two-year vocational-technical schools.

Old Glacial Snow Dirtier Than Now

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Snow that fell during the last glacial period about 14,000 years ago was much dirtier than that falling today, an Ohio State University study of polar ice cores has shown.

The OSU Institute of Polar Studies has been analyzing the cores taken from Byrd Station in West Antarctica and Camp Century in Greenland.

Lonnie G. Thompson, research associate at the institute, said the snow from Byrd Station was 100 times dirtier during the glacial period than it is today and that from Century was four times dirtier.

The study indicated that large scale climatic changes may occur suddenly and that conditions causing them can develop in a relatively short time, Thompson said.

"The transition from a high concentration of particles during the last glacial period to the low concentration of our present warm period takes place in less than 10 meters of ice, representing a time period of less than 100 years," he said.

Research determined that the majority of particles from the last glacial period in West Antarctica were of volcanic origin, Thompson said.

"A similar study on the Camp Century core has shown that its particles — which showed a large increase in the glacial stage ice — are mainly from terrestrial sources, probably blown onto the ice sheet by the more intense winds which are thought to have characterized the last glaciation," he said.

He said the larger concentration of particles in the Greenland core could probably be attributed to the much greater land mass in the northern hemisphere.

Thompson said studies at the NASA-Ames Research Center in Moffett Field, Calif., using the Ohio State data on concentration and size distribution in the Byrd core, showed that particle concentration was great enough to have caused the temperature changes typical of the last glacial period, he said.

During the past two million years, Thompson believes the earth has experienced at least five major glaciations, separated only by relatively short periods of warmth such as the one we live in today, he said.

Thompson was to present his findings to the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics symposium on isotopes and impurities in snow and ice at Grenoble, France.

The corporation, a creation of the federal government under the new law, is currently deciding how to take over administration of the suspended funds.

A spokesman said most of the terminated funds covered fewer than 50 employees.

Early estimates were that 1,200 not 3,000 funds would have to be administered by a bank appointed by the corporation, the spokesman said.

No estimate was available on the worth of the suspended pension funds, but the corporation said any bank chosen to administer them must be able to manage an account of $20 million, a figure likely to rise to $50 million "in the near future."

FFA And 4-H Scholarships Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A series of scholarships are being established for members of the Ohio 4-H and Future Farmers of America clubs by McDonald's System of Ohio, Inc.

The $3,500 in scholarships are funded by the sale of hamburgers by McDonald's at the 1975 Ohio State Fair.

Each scholarship will be worth $500 and can be used at most Ohio colleges, universities and two-year vocational-technical schools.

Old Glacial Snow Dirtier Than Now

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Snow that fell during the last glacial period about 14,000 years ago was much dirtier than that falling today, an Ohio State University study of polar ice cores has shown.

The OSU Institute of Polar Studies has been analyzing the cores taken from Byrd Station in West Antarctica and Camp Century in Greenland.

Lonnie G. Thompson, research associate at the institute, said the snow from Byrd Station was 100 times dirtier during the glacial period than it is today and that from Century was four times dirtier.

The study indicated that large scale climatic changes may occur suddenly and that conditions causing them can develop in a relatively short time, Thompson said.

"The transition from a high concentration of particles during the last glacial period to the low concentration of our present warm period takes place in less than 10 meters of ice, representing a time period of less than 100 years," he said.

Research determined that the majority of particles from the last glacial period in West Antarctica were of volcanic origin, Thompson said.

"A similar study on the Camp Century core has shown that its particles — which showed a large increase in the glacial stage ice — are mainly from terrestrial sources, probably blown onto the ice sheet by the more intense winds which are thought to have characterized the last glaciation," he said.

He said the larger concentration of particles in the Greenland core could probably be attributed to the much greater land mass in the northern hemisphere.

Thompson said studies at the NASA-Ames Research Center in Moffett Field, Calif., using the Ohio State data on concentration and size distribution in the Byrd core, showed that particle concentration was great enough to have caused the temperature changes typical of the last glacial period, he said.

During the past two million years, Thompson believes the earth has experienced at least five major glaciations, separated only by relatively short periods of warmth such as the one we live in today, he said.

Thompson was to present his findings to the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics symposium on isotopes and impurities in snow and ice at Grenoble, France.

A Different Game

1040 U.S. Individual Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q.) My home was burglarized recently and I sustained a loss of several thousand dollars. Can I take a deduction for this loss?

(A.) Yes. A personal theft loss is deductible to the extent it exceeds $100 and must be claimed in the year you discover the theft. The amount of the theft loss deduction is the lesser of: 1) the fair market value of the property; or 2) your adjusted basis in the property, that is, generally what you paid in cash or property, with adjustments for depreciation, capital expenditures, etc. The theft loss must be reduced by any insurance or other compensation you receive or anticipate receiving for the stolen property and by the $100 limitation.

For example, if your total loss equaled $6,000 and you received $3,000 in insurance compensation, your actual loss is $3,000. With the $100 limitation for theft and casualty losses you may deduct $2,900 on your return.

If the loss occurred on property held for personal use six months or less or if this was your only theft or casualty loss for the year on property held for personal use, you may report the deduction on lines 25 through 29 of Schedule A, Form 1040. If the property was held more than six months, it must be reported on Section A, Part I of Form 4797, Supplemental Schedule of Gains and Losses, along with all other casualty gains and losses on property held over six months. If you had more than one casualty or theft loss during the year, you should first complete Part II, Form 4684, Casualties and Thefts.

(Q.) I just read about a new law which allows individuals who are not self-employed to set up their own retirement savings program. How does this work?

(A.) Under the Pension Reform Act of 1974, eligible individuals may establish their own retirement savings program by making contributions each year equal to either 15 per cent of compensation or $1500 per year, whichever is less. Such contributions are generally tax deductible and create a fund from which the individual can draw income during retirement.

To be eligible for the individual retirement savings program, an individual must not contribute during any part of the tax year to: an employer's qualified pension, profit-sharing, stock bonus, annuity or bond-purchase plan; a government retirement plan; an annuity contract purchased by certain tax exempt organizations or public schools; or a plan for self-employed workers.

(Q.) I bought a new home last month, but did not qualify for the five per cent housing credit because the seller could not certify that the sale price of the home was the lowest ever offered. Is it true that this requirement for the housing credit has been changed?

(A.) Yes. A new law may qualify you for the credit if the seller can certify that your new principal residence was purchased at the lowest price offered after February 28, 1975. Because this change is retroactive, you may still qualify even though you have already bought the home. You should contact the seller of your home who must certify in writing: 1) that the sale price was the lowest price offered after February 28, 1975; and 2) that construction of the home was begun before March 26, 1975.

If you have additional questions about the credit, contact Taxpayer Assistance at your nearest IRS office.

Criminal Cases Heard In CP Court

Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William Ammer granted two motions for shock probation, sentenced three men to state penal institutions and ordered a pre-sentence report on another in criminal action in court Wednesday.

Filing the motions for shock probation were Charles McClarren who was serving a sentence for robbery and breaking and entering, and Joseph Charles Rhodes, serving a sentence for robbery. Both were placed on three years probation.

Carl Jennings pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of petit theft and was sentenced to six months in the county jail. That sentence was suspended in view of a second sentence of one to five years in the Ohio Penitentiary for forgery.

Harold Hoop was sentenced to concurrent terms of six months to five years in Mansfield Reformatory for grand theft and breaking and entering. He pleaded guilty.

Randy Minor entered a plea of guilty to grand theft. He was sentenced to six months to five years and the sentence was suspended. Minor was placed on

Tigers Run Over Dayton Franklin In 2nd Scrimmage

A LITTLE MORE—Circleville's Bill Mogan (37) boots the extra points after the Tigers' second touchdown. The Red and Black downed Dayton Franklin at Tiger Stadium Wednesday in a scrimmage game.

The Circleville Tigers rolled over a big Dayton Franklin club, 3-2, Wednesday night at Tiger Stadium, before a nice sized crowd.

leading batsman, Bill Madlock. It could've helped stake the Cubs to an early lead, an element essential in beating the Reds, according to Cub skipper Jim Marshall.

John Montefusco is coming up in the world. He may be taking the elevator to the penthouse pretty soon.

With his 14 strikeouts, Montefusco boosted his season total to 166, one shy of John D'Aquisto's year-old club record for a rookie.

Mets 7, Padres 0 Tom Seaver became the NL's first 19-game winner and edged within five strikeouts of a major league mark while riding homers by Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub to his victory over the Padres.

Seaver, who hurled a six-hitter for his fifth straight victory, struck out 10 batters and needs just five more to become the first major leaguer ever to fan 200 or more batters eight seasons in a row.

Braves 6, Pirates 2 The Braves, held hitless by John Candelaria for 6 2-3 innings, broke through for a pair of unearned runs in the seventh inning before Ralph Garr's tiebreaking single in a four-run ninth beat the Pirates.

Shortstop Craig Reynolds' wild throw on Vic Correll's leadoff grounder in the ninth — his second error of the game and the Pirates' fourth — started the Braves' decisive burst, which was capped by Darrell Evans' two-run single.

Despite the loss, Pittsburgh remained three games ahead of St. Louis and four in front of third-place Philadelphia.

Dodgers 10, Phillies 0 Burt Hooton chalked up his seventh straight victory with a three-hitter and highlighted a seven-run sixth inning with a two-run single to lead the Dodgers past Philadelphia.

Astros 5, Cardinals 1 St. Louis' four-game winning streak stumbled to an end as the Cards committed five errors — two of them by rookie third baseman Hector Cruz — to give Houston three of its runs.

Roundtowners finished the season in third place with a mark of 13-7.

for the second marker. The Tigers' third touchdown came when John Payne cracked over from the 1-yard stripe.

Circleville's tough middle guard, Earl Stevenson, was injured on the second play of the scrimmage and was taken to Berger Hospital with what appeared to be a broken arm.

"We were well pleased with our performance tonight and feel that our club is continually making progress," Circleville coach Larry Cook stated.

County Teams Hold Grid Scrimmages

All three county schools held their second scrimmage of the season on their home turfs.

Teays Valley and Columbus South battled to a 3-3 tie as the Vikings connected on three touchdown passes.

Greg Cline hit Lloyd Windon with an eight-yard scorer and put the ball in Joe Berger's hands for a 12-yard score.

Teays Valley will host Athens 7 p.m. Saturday in the final pre-season scrimmage before the Sept. 5 opener at Groveport.

Logan Elm and Madison fought to a hard 0-0 tie. The Braves drove to Madison's goal line but fumbled and lost the ball on the 2-yard line.

Madison Plains deepest penetration was to the 35-yard line of the Braves who displayed a strong defense.

The Braves will host Bexley 8 p.m. Saturday in their final scrimmage before the season opener at West Jefferson.

Westfall dropped a 3-1 decision to Amanda-Clearcreek. John Long scored for the Mustangs who will host Berne Union Sept. 5.

Stan Smith Battling Tennis Elbow

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Three years ago Stan Smith was the king of tennis. Today he is in exile.

"The game isn't as much fun, not when you're losing," said Smith. "The excitement of playing is there. I know I can play well. It's a combination of things."

He mentioned lack of aggressiveness, not hitting, not moving, impatience, the mind.

Then, almost as an afterthought, he mentioned a painful tennis elbow.

Onny Parun of New Zealand shed more light on Smith's plight after beating him in the first round of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Wednesday 6-4, 6-2.

"I see him with his arm in ice after matches," Parun said of the former U.S. Open and Wimbledon champion. "Before he plays I see him having it rubbed down. He does it in a corner so no one sees him."

"He's a pretty good sport and never says much to the players. But when you walk out on court with a sore arm, you change your strokes. You lose confidence, lose matches. You have to play 100 per cent and he's playing only 60 per cent."

"I'd say he needs a good long rest."

Smith, 28, won the Open in 1971 and Wimbledon in 1972. He was rated the No. 1 player in the United States and the world in 1973. Last year he shared the No. 1 billing in the United States with Jimmy Connors and this year is ranked No. 2.

Baseball Players Attack Murtaugh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The baseball players' union has complained to the National Labor Relations Board that Pittsburgh Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh wrongfully disrupted a team meeting to suspend pitcher Dock Ellis.

The team meeting was held in Cincinnati Aug. 16. Ellis was suspended for the maximum of 30 days after he made remarks and used words that infuriated Murtaugh.

The Post-Gazette reported the NLRB complaint in today's editions.

Bengals And Eagles Play Switch Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles and the Cincinnati Bengals have traded so many players back and forth that the exhibition game here tonight could be the Cincinnati Eagles versus the Philadelphia Bengals.

Philadelphia Coach Mike McCormack, himself a former guard for Cincinnati Bengals Coach Paul Brown at Cleveland, named Mike Boryla to start at quarterback.

Boryla, drafted originally out of Stanford last year by Cincinnati, was traded to Philadelphia after no agreement could be reached on a contract.

Eagles center linebacker Bill Bergey was sent packing to Philadelphia following a court fight in which Brown lost his suit to keep Bergey from signing with a World Football League franchise. Bergey did not go to the NFL.

In another trade, Cincinnati got quarterback John Reaves. Reaves had been a starter for Philadelphia until he was bumped by Roman Gabriel with Boryla the backup.

Brown named Reaves to start for Cincinnati tonight instead of Ken Anderson, last season's leading passer.

Cincinnati sent tackle Stan Waiters and quarterback Wayne Clark to the Eagles in the deal.

Also, Cincinnati's all-time leading scorer, soccer-style place kicker Horst Muhlmann is now with the Eagles. Cincinnati loaded up on future draft choices in the Bergey and Muhlmann trades.

"It's a challenge," said Reaves, still disgruntled about his treatment with the Eagles. "I've got a lot to prove. I want to prove to the staff I can do the job for them under a pressure situation, and I want to prove it to my teammates and the fans."

The burly Bergey, whose rough, excited play still remains popular in Cincinnati, said he's looking forward to the pre-Labor Day weekend contest.

"This year I feel more loose," said Bergey. "I looked at the films last week of our game with the Bengals last year and I couldn't believe how badly I played. I was tight but I don't think I'll be like that Thursday night."

Cincinnati walloped the Eagles 35-21 in a 1974 exhibition. They did not meet in regular season play.

Cincinnati is 2-2 in exhibition play this season, Philadelphia is 2-1.

Tribe Splits Doubleheader With Chisox

CLEVELAND (AP) — Stocky Fritz Peterson, holding court in front of his locker, did his best to explain how you can be in a pitching slump and still win six straight games.

The left-hander threw a four-hit, 5-0 shutout Wednesday night against the Chicago White Sox, salvaging a split for the Cleveland Indians in the American League baseball doubleheader.

The White Sox won the first game 2-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Claude Osteen and Rich Gossage. Cleveland's Jim Bibby took the heartbreaking loss in that one, giving up only three hits.

Two of them, however, were home runs by Jorge Orta and Bill Melton.

Peterson, who has won six in a row and now has a 10-7 record, stifled a smile and explained, "I was really in a pitching slump."

"In my last two games, I was just kinda throwing and hoping," he added.

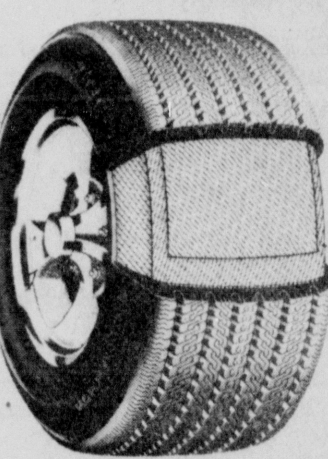

Peterson said pitching coach Harvey Haddix and bullpen catcher Jeff Torborg helped him get straightened out.

"They noticed I was pulling back too far in motion and bringing my leg back too much. Jeff said to stay more upright and get into a tuck position," he said.

"But all the runs helped too," he noted, referring to three runs in the Indians' first and two more in the fourth. The only run he needed was supplied by Cleveland leadoff batter John Lowenstein, who socked his ninth homer of the season in the first.

Blyleven, Twins Blank Brewers

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Bert Blyleven took his 11-inning, 13-strikeout performance in stride. "I felt pretty good," said the Minnesota Twins' ace. "I thought if I kept them from scoring, we'd win eventually."

He did and they did.

The 6-foot-3 right-hander walked only one batter Wednesday night, got all the support he needed from Tony Oliva's pinch-single in the 11th, and could have pitched a few more innings if he'd needed to.

"I wasn't getting tired," he said after the six-hit masterpiece. "I just kept mixing fastballs and curves in order to stay in there until we got around to scoring a run."

It took awhile, but Oliva's single delivered pinch-runner Steve Brye with the run that gave the Twins a 1-0 triumph and left the Brewers in awe.

"Blyleven is one of the premier pitchers in the game," marveled Milwaukee Manager Del Crandall.

"The guy is so tough he makes everything look simple," added losing pitcher Bill Travers, who pitched four-hit ball for 10 1-3 innings — his longest stint since his high school days.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston topped California 6-2; Baltimore trimmed Kansas City 4-2; Oakland nipped New York 3-2; Texas trounced Detroit 8-2; and in a two-night doubleheader, Chicago beat Cleveland 2-0, then lost the nightcap 5-0.

Red Sox 8, Angels 2

Roger Moret allowed eight hits and walked seven but raised his record to 11-2 as Boston whipped California before 34,239 at Fenway Park.

The Red Sox got three first-inning runs on doubles by Denny Doyle and Fred Lynn and Jim Rice's 21st homer into the center-field bleachers.

The Angels came back with two runs in the second — on one single and four walks, with a sacrifice fly thrown in. Then Boston added a run in their half and two more in the third.

Orioles 4, Royals 2

Six extra-base hits, including a key two-run double by Ken Singleton in the fourth inning, lifted Baltimore past Kansas City.

A's 3, Yankees 2

Thurman Munson's ninth-inning error, his 19th error of the year, allowed pinch-runner Matt Alexander to reach third and score on Gene Tenace's sacrifice fly for Oakland's winning run in the ninth inning.

Rangers 8, Tigers 2

Ferguson Jenkins and Steve Foucault combined on a nine-hitter and Jim Spencer paced a 12-hit Texas attack to lift the Rangers over the Tigers.

Spencer had three singles and a double and Jeff Burroughs, Tom Grieve and Roy Howell each drove in two runs as the Rangers ran their winning streak to five games.

White Sox 2-0, Indians 0-5

Jorge Orta and Bill Melton smashed homers to give the White Sox a 2-0 victory in the first game before Fritz Peterson's four-hitter and John Lowenstein's home run powered the Indians in the nightcap.

Oklahoma Midwest Team To Beat

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer
Oklahoma.

The Sooners stood alone at the top when the 1974 season was over and there's every reason to believe Barry Switzer's team can extend its 29-game unbeaten streak through the 1975 season and challenge again for the national title.

Oklahoma is the Midwest's best bet for the national crown, but the usual gangs from Columbus, Ann Arbor, Lincoln and South Bend are around preening for top honors, bowl bids and supremacy of Midwestern football.

Michigan figures to be the Big Ten leader with Ohio State and Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin close on the Wolves' heels and Michigan State ready for a crack at the Michigan-Ohio State domination of the Big Ten.

Nebraska is Oklahoma's strongest challenger to the Big Eight title which figures to be decided in their season-ending match at Norman, Okla. Colorado boasts a splendid offense and could generate enough power to scare the Sooners when they meet in the conference opener.

The section's perennial top independent, Notre Dame, lost all but one starter from the offensive unit that nipped Alabama in the Orange Bowl and Dan Devine, replacing Ara Parseghian at South Bend, faces one of the tougher Irish schedules in recent years.

Wisconsin also figures to cause some trouble in the Big Ten and Purdue, returning several starters from each unit, could be the conference dark-horse.

Miami of Ohio, which finished with a No. 10 rating nationally in 1974, again looks to be the strength of the Mid-American Conference but non-conference battles with Purdue, Cincinnati and Michigan State could spell an end to the Redskins' 23-game unbeaten string.

In the Missouri Valley Conference, Tulsa, 8-3 a year ago, is expected to match that mark and haul off another league title.

Of the superpowers, only the Sooners, who racked up an average 43 points a game in 11 straight wins last year, have few holes to fill.

Switzer appears set to turn the show over to Steve Davis, the quarterback who ran and passed for more than 1,500 yards last year, and Joe Washington, a dazzling runner who scurried for 1,350 yards along the ground. Back again is receiver Tinker Owens and most of the strong defense, anchored again by the Selmon brothers, Dewey and Leroy.

Michigan's Bo Schembechler says his defense will be strong but the Wolves need to replace quarterback Dennis Franklin, gone after three years as a starter. Mark Elzinga probably will get the nod. Gordon Bell is the Michigan game-breaker.

Ohio State's Woody Hayes always has a supply of talented, big lineman and he'll need a host of them to rebuild his graduated lines on both units. The Buckeyes also have to replace Neal Colzie, who patrolled the secondary for three years; and Hayes confronts a tough season start, facing Michigan State and Penn State in the first two games.

Accused Slayer Faces Surgery

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The accused slayer of Cincinnati policeman William J. Loftin lay near death himself at Cincinnati General Hospital after undergoing abdominal surgery for gunshot wounds.

The condition of Cleophus Collins, 52, of Cincinnati worsened from fair to critical Wednesday.

Loftin, 36, a bachelor, was shot to death on an Avondale section street Tuesday night as he tried to arrest a man who staggered out of a bar and began shooting in the air, police charged in an affidavit.

Loftin and his vice squad partner Claude Dell were assigned to checking bars in the vicinity, according to Homicide Lt. Daniel Cash.

Cash said there were no others involved in the incident although 20 persons were brought in for questioning.

Collins was charged with aggravated murder. Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr. said he will bypass a preliminary hearing and seek a direct indictment on the evidence from the grand jury.

Conviction could mean the death penalty, court officials said.

Both Dell and the assailant exchanged a number of shots before Collins escaped in his car, Cash said. Collins was arrested several blocks away by policeman who took him to the hospital.

K. C. Chiefs Unknown Quantity

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs are definitely a question mark starting the new National Football League season.

Only one thing is really certain: Hank Stram, the dapper coach who guided the Chiefs through all of their previous years, won't be pacing the sidelines with a program rolled up in his hand.

The Stram era is over. Stram was fired last winter after a dismal 5-9 season, the worst in the Chiefs' history. Paul Wiggin, plucked from the coaching staff of the San Francisco 49ers, is the new boss.

The Chiefs hired the energetic, personable, 40-year-old Wiggin to try to return the team to respectability on the field and to restore the club's public image which sagged to rock-bottom in the waning years of Stram's regime.

Wiggin says the new coaching staff and the players are "trying to adapt to one another. There's still a lot of apprehension. We need some success now. Our big area of concern is our offensive line.

"I won't say we'll finish 8-6," Wiggin said. "I won't say we'll have it in three years. We're going to struggle and fight to be a winner."

Wiggin doesn't relish the thought of building his team around 40-year-old Len Dawson, who quarterbacked the Chiefs to a Super Bowl victory as the climax to the 1969 season and since has watched the team gradually decline.

If anybody beats Dawson out, and that isn't likely, it will have to be Mike Livingston, his understudy; Greg Cook, a rookie star with Cincinnati in 1969 but since plagued by shoulder problems, or Tony Adams, who led the World Football League in passing last season with the Southern California Sun.

No matter who plays quarterback, he's certain to have problems. The offensive line of the Chiefs simply isn't adequate despite the presence of veterans Jack Rudnay at center and guard Ed Budde and the likes of tackles Charlie Getty and Jim Nicholson and guard Tom Condon.

The Chiefs' fullback outlook has been bolstered by the acquisition of MacArthur Lane from the Green Bay Packers. Wiggin has a trio of fine running backs in Woody Green, Ed Podolak and Cleophus Miller. Green's status isn't certain. He is facing a rape charge in Portland, Ore.

About the running backs, Wiggin says, "I think we are the haves ... not the havenots." And our fullback situation has turned around completely with the addition of Lane ... and there's Jeff Kinney and Morris LaGrand."

The Chiefs figure they are pretty well set defensively. Wiggin lured premier linebacker Willie Lanier out of retirement. Lanier is joined by two old standbys, Jim Lynch and Bobby Bell.

The rest of the defense is loaded with veterans, Wilbur Young and John Matuszak at end, Buck Buchanan and Marvin Upshaw at the tackles, Emmitt Thomas and Jim Marsalis at the cornerbacks and Mike Sensibaugh and Jim Kearney at safety.

These Crocs Think They're Frogs

SILVER SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — The famous jumping frogs of Calaveras County may have a new rival in the jumping crocodiles of Silver Springs.

They are Cuban Crocodiles, a rare species found only in the Zapata Swamp of Cuba, and they can jump straight up from the ground, sometimes as high as eight feet. Black with speckled yellow markings, these creatures are the only known species of crocodiles that are able to jump.

The Reptile Institute at this 4,500-acre nature preserve in central Florida has two Cuban Crocodiles, caught in Cuba 13 years ago. The crocodiles live in a swampy lagoon on Cypress Point, a five-acre island said to be home to the largest collection of reptiles in North America.

Tennessee football teams have split the decisions in 22 bowl appearances.

The National Collegiate Sports Services has moved from New York City to Shawnee Mission, Kan.

The Reptile Institute at this 4,500-acre nature preserve in central Florida has two Cuban Crocodiles, caught in Cuba 13 years ago. The crocodiles live in a swampy lagoon on Cypress Point, a five-acre island said to be home to the largest collection of reptiles in North America.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Ready... set... go! Help your child to a good start in school with colorful books on easy subjects. "Chicken Soup with Rice" is not about food; it's an unusual book of the months of the year in rhyme. After all, it's more fun to see a robin in a chef's hat stirring soup in his nest than an ordinary May robin smugly sitting, not doing anything. "One was Johnny" is more than a counting book; it's a puzzle and a story as well. Into Johnny's empty room comes a strange procession of animals pursuing one another and making nuisances of themselves. When Johnny has had enough he makes the intruders disappear by counting down from ten to one, Funny!

Another book in the "Nutshell Library" is "Alligators All Around," an alphabet book. These mischievous critters are no models of good behavior. They burst balloons, catch colds and quarrel. Maurice Sendak has given us a bit of nonsense that will be enjoyed over and over again.

If you want to teach good manners take time to read aloud from "Being Nice is Lots of Fun." Introduce your family to "Roughneck Ronnie," "Selfish Sam" and "Grabby Gert." Cartoons live up these simple rules for behaving nicely.

In "The Magic of Everyday Things," the author gives us an assortment of useful knowledge. Included are pages on telephone talk, setting the table and other pleasant ways of being helpful at home.

Photographs are an excellent way of explaining difficult ideas. "Over, Under and Through" has large glossy shots of playground action as children romp over, under and behind each other. At least, an easy way to teach what these often used words mean.

Sizes and shapes are also necessary to everyday living. "Three Sides and a Round One" places these familiar shapes on large pages for easy identification. And to help with the words "big" and "small" is the book "Bigger and Smaller." To help define "big" they picture Wilt Chamberlin who is 7 feet, 2 inches tall and weighs 305 pounds alongside a very tiny man. And a child is asked to think about the largest and the smallest things he has ever seen.

A really useful book is "Let's Think about Time." It not only explains hours and minutes, but fills the days and weeks with activities so that time is related to the things we do.

There are several other alphabet and counting books to choose from. "A Kitten's ABC" has inky black kittens on every page. Also, "The Animal ABC" is brimming over with wide-eyed cats and strutting roosters.

Help for your young school children is as close as your public library. So come in and look around.

Firemen Respond To 3 Hospitals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One hundred firemen and 30 pieces of equipment responded to fire alarms at three Columbus hospitals within minutes on Wednesday.

The first alarm from Riverside Methodist Memorial Hospital came at 7:29 a.m.—a faulty alarm.

The second went off four minutes later at Grant Hospital—smoke in the boiler room.

The next minute Mount Carmel East Hospital reported a fire—another faulty alarm.

"It really gets you scratching (for men and equipment) from all over," a fire dispatcher said.

There were no injuries.

Charge Man In Slaying

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jack Carmen, a 25-year-old odd jobber, was charged Wednesday with aggravated murder in the death of Christie Mullins, a teenager found slain behind a department store last weekend, police said.

The 14-year-old girl was clubbed to death by a 2-by-4 piece of lumber in a wooded area Saturday.

Police were without suspects until late Tuesday when Carmen was stopped by a patrolman downtown who thought Carmen resembled a drawing police artists assembled from the description of a witness to the slaying.

"You can't believe you can get a break like that," said Detective Robert Litzinger. "Just to see the guy on the street like that. It probably won't happen again in a million years."

Carmen, who officers said confessed to the slaying, was charged with aggravated murder after six hours of questioning and going through a lineup.

He pleaded innocent in municipal court Wednesday. He was ordered to city prison without bond.

Portuguese Problem Remains Unsolved

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Communists brought out a crowd of 35,000 in Lisbon to demonstrate in support of Premier Vasco Goncalves, but the Socialists mustered 50,000 against him in the northern city of Porto.

"This is a critical moment," Goncalves told supporters Wednesday night from a raised platform at the presidential palace in Lisbon. "The central problem is power. There is an acute struggle for power."

President Francisco da Costa Gomes, who has the authority to dismiss Goncalves, also spoke at the rally, but he failed to give the embattled premier his explicit backing.

Instead, Costa Gomes said the nation's development required participation "of all political forces indispensable for the construction of a new society." The crowd, waving hammer-and-sickle banners, responded with catcalls, boos and whistling.

Anti-Communist violence continued in the countryside. Two Communist party members were wounded in an attack on their headquarters in Esmoriz. A mob burned a party headquarters in Leiria. Farmers in Rio Maior trapped a caravan of cars filled with armed Communists and turned them over to the national guard.

A Lisbon newspaper reported that army officers on Madeira, the Portuguese island 600 miles southwest of Lisbon, had advised Costa Gomes the population there was likely to declare independence of Portugal if the "minority unpopular central government continues in office."

A similar independence movement is already strong in the Azores, Portugal's other Atlantic islands.

In Vienna, Austrian authorities impounded a shipment of 1,000 sub-machine guns ordered by the government of Czechoslovakia. Airport sources said a private Boeing 707 jet arrived from Lisbon to pick up the guns, and Austrian newspapers speculated that the Czechs ordered them for the Portuguese Communists.

Price And Quality Of Beef Attacked

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Both consumers and cattle farmers are complaining about the price and quality of beef these days. And both may be right, says Iowa Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsberry.

"Consumers are paying the price of choice beef, but producers are being paid for good beef," Lounsberry said. "It's happening all over the country."

Lounsberry, a former cattle producer, said Wednesday he has received numerous complaints that farmers are sending cattle they believe to be all choice grade to market, only to be told the majority of the beef "grades out" at good, the grade below choice.

"That costs them $85 to $120 a head on a 1,000 pound steer," he said.

And he adds that when the consumer goes to the meat market, he finds most beef graded neither prime nor good, but select.

"If you ask the grocer whether the meat is good or choice, they say 'We don't handle good beef, we handle a grade in between.'"

"There is no grade in between. The beef should be prime, choice, good or, in some cases, commercial."

Lounsberry says it is not illegal for a market to have its own grades and not label its meat U.S. good or choice, "but the consumer is not understanding what he is getting."

He said there is now an 8-to-12 cent price spread per pound between good and choice graded beef, but when the meat is sold ungraded or as select beef, it usually goes for near the choice price.

Lounsberry said farmers are reluctant to hold cattle for additional fattening and higher grades because "farmers remember too vividly what happened a year ago when they fed to higher weights, then the slaughterhouses didn't want to buy anything that heavy."

"Who's making the profit? We don't have the proof, but we're checking into it."

"If the housewife will settle for lower quality meat, that's what she'll get. To protect herself and benefit the farmer, she should ask the retailer whether he is selling good or choice beef."

Severe Weather Continues In U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold front brought rain to the Pacific Northwest today as scattered thundershowers continued to dampen parts of the Southeast.

Showers and a few thundershowers stretched from Washington State to northern California.

Severe thunderstorms Wednesday afternoon dropped large hail on Midland, S.D., and buffeted Alliance, Neb., with winds gusting up to 75 miles per hour.

A high pressure center over Pennsylvania kept the Northeast clear and cool. Clear skies also prevailed in the Southwest. Cloudy skies were reported over most of the rest of the nation.

Arizona recorded both the highest and the lowest temperatures in the nation early today, with the mercury hovering at 87 in Phoenix and dipping to 45 at Flagstaff.

The National Weather Service's forecast for today calls for showers from the northern Pacific Coast running eastward to Montana, with more scattered showers and thundershowers along the west end of the Great Lakes and the mid-Mississippi Valley. Temperatures are expected to be hot in the Central Plains, cool in the Northwest and northern Rockies and mild to the southern plains. Elsewhere over the nation temperatures will be warm.

In Florida, weather forecasters said the blanket of haze hanging over most of the state probably is not caused by pollution and poses little or no danger to people.

The haze, composed mostly of smoke and dust particles and extending more than 12,000 feet above ground, should remain over the state at least until Friday, forecasters said Wednesday.

The haze originated in the Northeastern U.S. late last week, moved over northern Florida during the weekend and reached Miami on Tuesday.

On Wednesday, it stretched from north of Virginia extending 300 miles out into the Atlantic.

Meanwhile, a weak tropical depression lost strength Wednesday and was downgraded by the National Hurricane Center to a tropical wave. Forecasters said the weather formation no longer had circulation as it moved westward toward the northern Yucatan Peninsula.

Rain accompanied the wave, which carried highest sustained winds estimated at 20 to 25 miles per hour.

No significant change was expected, forecasters said.

Liz Gets Film Offer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Producer-director Wolf Vollmar says he's offered Elizabeth Taylor the feminine lead in a film to be shot in Israel.

Vollmar said Wednesday that Miss Taylor would play opposite Richard Burton, who has already agreed to play a lead role in the movie "Abakarov," the story of a Russian pilot who immigrates to Israel.

Burton and Miss Taylor arrived here recently to inspect the locations.

Vollmar said he had no information on the possible remarriage of Burton and Miss Taylor, who were divorced 14 months ago and reconciled last week in Switzerland.

If Miss Taylor accepts the part, it would be their first pairing in a film since the divorce. Spokesmen for the couple announced last week they had permanently reconciled, and Burton reportedly spoke of a possible wedding in Israel.

Ah! me, do I dare hope these delightfully cool breezes today are a promise of sweet relief from the sizzling hot humid weather of so many weeks? I surely hope it is more than a one day show.

Festival

Deadline for registering as a contestant in the Deercreek Dam Days Festival royalty contests is Saturday, September 6. Entries should be mailed to Festival, Box 328, Williamsport, 43164 and must include name, age, parents name, address and phone number. Teen age King and Queen, (ages 13-19) and Pre-Teen King and Queen, (9-12) will be chosen Thursday, September 11 and the Little Prince and Princess, (4-8) will be selected on Friday evening.

Each event will be preceded by a parade beginning at 6 p.m. If contestants wish to participate in the parade each must furnish car, driver and signs and must assemble at the corners of South Water and Walnut Sts. by 5:30 p.m. Numbers for contestants will be assigned at this time as a verification of pre-registration.

Jim and Karen Dean and their two "adollables" Michele and Nichole are home from an annual Florida vacation. Their fun time had a bit of an interruption when another driver misused and "clobbered" the Dean's car. Thankfully no one was injured even though a bit shaken up and naturally rather frightened.

Papa Bill and son Marc did a spot of traveling and were in Portland, Indiana Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the annual Tri-State Antique Engine Show. When the show first started around twelve years ago only a "handful" of us were there and now this year there were thousands. Other localities at the show were "Shorty" and Jackie Hopper. They went over on Wednesday and stayed for the "whole thing".

Ray Frazier of Angola, Indiana spent from Saturday until Monday at the home of his father, Art Frazier. On Sunday they were joined by Ray and Helen Frazier Shoemaker of Circleville formerly of Angola. Helen and her spouse come over every Sunday and prepare dinner reports Mr. Frazier who is a spry and alert ninety four years old. Week days he does his own cooking.

Ron and Marilyn Bush were in Somerset Thursday evening for a family get together at the home of Marilyn's parents, "Doc" and Bernice Dupler. The Bush boys, Mike and Tim enjoyed boating on Deercreek Dam with grandparents Gene and Dorothy. Grandparents Bush and the boys did the Ohio State Fair together on Tuesday of this week.

Guess where yours truly was Friday evening? If you answered The Valley House seafood buffet you are so right. Jim and Belle Sowers, dedicated Roundtowners, accompanied Amy and myself. We saw Glen and Beverly Whitten and young Mike eating their fill, too. It was Bev's birthday. Also enjoying the savory delights were J.C. and Elsie Roberts and the Johnny Farmers. We nearly always "find" some one from home down there. Mary Alice Greenwood missed this week simply because we didn't zig and zag at the same time. In other words she wasn't home when I phoned her and I wasn't home when she phoned me. That's how it goes some days.

Shana Wills is in the mood to toss a yard sale this Friday and Saturday. Her offerings can be seen at the corner of S. Main and Walnut Sts. (the A.J. Cook residence) from 9 a.m. until evening.

Owen Graves, his better half and their son Kim of Ray, Ohio chit-chatted with the Marvie baby Thompsons the other evening. Guess Owen misses his Container Corporation working companion Marvie baby since his illness. Marvie has been discharged from Berger Hospital and is on the recuperating road.

It's a son for David and Sharon Shannon Christopher and they couldn't be happier. Weighing in at 8 lbs. 8 ozs. Master Michael Shannon Christopher arrived August 20 midnight at the Ross County Medical Center, Chillicothe. Grandparents are Shorty and Mearl Christopher of our town and the Russ Shannons of near Derby.

Hey, girls, one of our town's most eligible males has himself a super neat new set of wheels. And what a super neat hunk of male he is, too. He has been a special favorite of mine since his grade school days. We won't publicize his name but I will tell you the set of wheels is a Monte Carlo.

I know I am forgetting something that someone told me but at Festival time I hope everyone will be understanding and realize that my normally disorganized person becomes even more hectic, harried and heavy, man, heavy.

Wilson Thomas is on the mend after suffering a heart attack and being a patient for several days at Fayette Memorial Hospital. He is now at home and we all wish him steady improvement.

Dick and Gloria Henson of Las Vegas, Nevada were in our village for a few days renewing old friendships. The Hensons are former residents who COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Industrial Commission has decided to launch an investigation of alleged irregularities in its handling of workmen's compensation cases.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says the commission has set up a six-member committee to study disclosures made by the newspaper.

Meanwhile, the Franklin County prosecutor's office has begun reviewing the findings of a state highway patrol investigation into a supposed conflict of interest case involving commission chairman, Gregory J. Stebbins.

Portuguese Problem Remains Unsolved

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Communists brought out a crowd of 35,000 in Lisbon to demonstrate in support of Premier Vasco Goncalves, but the Socialists mustered 50,000 against him in the northern city of Porto.

"This is a critical moment," Goncalves told supporters Wednesday night from a raised platform at the presidential palace in Lisbon. "The central problem is power. There is an acute struggle for power."

President Francisco da Costa Gomes, who has the authority to dismiss Goncalves, also spoke at the rally, but he failed to give the embattled premier his explicit backing.

Instead, Costa Gomes said the nation's development required participation "of all political forces indispensable for the construction of a new society." The crowd, waving hammer-and-sickle banners, responded with catcalls, boos and whistling.

Anti-Communist violence continued in the countryside. Two Communist party members were wounded in an attack on their headquarters in Esmeriz. A mob burned a party headquarters in Leiria. Farmers in Rio Maior trapped a caravan of cars filled with armed Communists and turned them over to the national guard.

A Lisbon newspaper reported that army officers on Madeira, the Portuguese island 600 miles southwest of Lisbon, had advised Costa Gomes the population there was likely to declare independence of Portugal if the "minority unpopular central government continues in office."

A similar independence movement is already strong in the Azores, Portugal's other Atlantic islands.

In Vienna, Austrian authorities impounded a shipment of 1,000 sub-machine guns ordered by the government of Czechoslovakia. Airport sources said a private Boeing 707 jet arrived from Lisbon to pick up the guns, and Austrian newspapers speculated that the Czechs ordered them for the Portuguese Communists.

Price And Quality Of Beef Attacked

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Both consumers and cattle farmers are complaining about the price and quality of beef these days. And both may be right, says Iowa Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsberry.

"Consumers are paying the price of choice beef, but producers are being paid for good beef," Lounsberry said. "It's happening all over the country."

Lounsberry, a former cattle producer, said Wednesday he has received numerous complaints that farmers are sending cattle they believe to be all choice grade to market, only to be told the majority of the beef "grades out" at good, the grade below choice.

"That costs them $85 to $120 a head on a 1,000 pound steer," he said.

And he adds that when the consumer goes to the meat market, he finds most beef graded neither prime nor good, but select.

"If you ask the grocer whether the meat is good or choice, they say 'We don't handle good beef, we handle a grade in between.'"

"There is no grade in between. The beef should be prime, choice, good or, in some cases, commercial."

Lounsberry says it is not illegal for a market to have its own grades and not label its meat U.S. good or choice, "but the consumer is not understanding what he is getting."

He said there is now an 8-to-12 cent price spread per pound between good and choice graded beef, but when the meat is sold ungraded or as select beef, it usually goes for near the choice price.

Lounsberry said farmers are reluctant to hold cattle for additional fattening and higher grades because "farmers remember too vividly what happened a year ago when they fed to higher weights, then the slaughterhouses didn't want to buy anything that heavy."

"Who's making the profit? We don't have the proof, but we're checking into it."

"If the housewife will settle for lower quality meat, that's what she'll get. To protect herself and benefit the farmer, she should ask the retailer whether he is selling good or choice beef."

Severe Weather Continues In U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold front brought rain to the Pacific Northwest today as scattered thundershowers continued to dampen parts of the Southeast.

Showers and a few thundershowers stretched from Washington State to northern California.

Severe thunderstorms Wednesday afternoon dropped large hail on Midland, S.D., and buffeted Alliance, Neb., with winds gusting up to 75 miles per hour.

A high pressure center over Pennsylvania kept the Northeast clear and cool. Clear skies also prevailed in the Southwest. Cloudy skies were reported over most of the rest of the nation.

Arizona recorded both the highest and the lowest temperatures in the nation early today, with the mercury hovering at 87 in Phoenix and dipping to 45 at Flagstaff.

The National Weather Service's forecast for today calls for showers from the northern Pacific Coast running eastward to Montana, with more scattered showers and thundershowers along the west end of the Great Lakes and the mid-Mississippi Valley. Temperatures are expected to be hot in the Central Plains, cool in the Northwest and northern Rockies and mild to the southern plains. Elsewhere over the nation temperatures will be warm.

In Florida, weather forecasters said the blanket of haze hanging over most of the state probably is not caused by pollution and poses little or no danger to people.

The haze, composed mostly of smoke and dust particles and extending more than 12,000 feet above ground, should remain over the state at least until Friday, forecasters said Wednesday.

The haze originated in the Northeastern U.S. late last week, moved over northern Florida during the weekend and reached Miami on Tuesday.

On Wednesday, it stretched from north of Virginia extending 300 miles out into the Atlantic.

Meanwhile, a weak tropical depression lost strength Wednesday and was downgraded by the National Hurricane Center to a tropical wave. Forecasters said the weather for-

Williamsport News

By EILEEN EASTERDAY, Phone 986-3481

Ah! me, do I dare hope these delightfully cool breezes today are a promise of sweet relief from the sizzling hot humid weather of so many weeks? I surely hope it is more than a one day show.

Festival

Deadline for registering as a contestant in the Deercreek Dam Days Festival royalty contests is Saturday, September 6. Entries should be mailed to Festival, Box 328, Williamsport, 43164 and must include name, age, parents name, address and phone number. Teen age King and Queen, (ages 13-19) and Pre-Teen King and Queen, (9-12) will be chosen Thursday, September 11 and the Little Prince and Princess, (4-8) will be selected on Friday evening.

Each event will be preceded by a parade beginning at 6 p.m. If contestants wish to participate in the parade each must furnish car, driver and signs and must assemble at the corners of South Water and Walnut Sts. by 5:30 p.m. Numbers for contestants will be assigned at this time as a verification of pre-registration.

Jim and Karen Dean and their two "adollables" Michele and Nichole are home from an annual Florida vacation. Their fun time had a bit of an interruption when another driver misused and "clobbered" the Dean's car. Thankfully no one was injured even though a bit shaken up and naturally rather frightened.

Papa Bill and son Marc did a spot of traveling and were in Portland, Indiana Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the annual Tri-State Antique Engine Show. When the show first started around twelve years ago only a "handful" of us were there and now this year there were thousands. Other localities at the show were "Shorty" and Jackie Hopper. They went over on Wednesday and stayed for the "whole thing".

Ray Frazier of Angola, Indiana spent from Saturday until Monday at the home of his father, Art Frazier. On Sunday they were joined by Ray and Helen Frazier Shoemaker of Circleville formerly of Angola. Helen and her spouse come over every Sunday and prepare dinner reports Mr. Frazier who is a spry and alert ninety four years old. Week days he does his own cooking.

Ron and Marilyn Bush were in Somerset Thursday evening for a family get together at the home of Marilyn's parents, "Doc" and Bernice Dupler. The Bush boys, Mike and Tim enjoyed boating on Deercreek Dam with grandparents Gene and Dorothy. Grandparents Bush and the boys did the Ohio State Fair together on Tuesday of this week.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Auspicious influences. Manage well, interpret carefully. Don't accept ALL suggestions offered. Study carefully first.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): If too eager, you may overreach your mark but, if observing your limitations and maintaining a reasonable pace, you can accomplish a great deal.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Don't look askance at those who disagree with you or express "way out" ideas. On consideration, you may find that they contain gems of wisdom. Overall, a promising day.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Your organizational abilities should not go unnoticed now. Capitalize on past experience and use only the best of pre-tested procedures. Increased prestige indicated.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't be impatient. If barriers, even seemingly insurmountable, seem to obstruct your progress, be content to wait until they are removed. They WILL be!

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Your stars now stimulate your ambitions, perseverance and confidence and, with these, you can rack up a fine total of credits. Do make the most of fine influences.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Especially favored now: business interests and personal relationships. Display your efficient and amenable side and you can't help but earn rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Avoid tendencies to procrastinate or to work sporadically. Keep eyes on your goal, maintain a steady and reasonable tempo, and step progressively toward it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): You may be called upon to make some weighty decisions. However, this should not daunt the well-developed Sagittarian who, even in the most critical moments, thinks clearly and astutely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): If you missed out on something during the early part of the week and it is still desirable, try for it now. Planetary influences helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Review your plans, methods; note where you can better situations. Eliminate anxiety; supplant with precautions and good management. Work to avoid oversights.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may have to ease up in some respects. But NOT ease out or fade out. A really fine day for accomplishments if you are well organized and maintain an even pace.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great versatility, lofty and idealistic ambitions and remarkable intuition and sensitivity. You are competent and practical in all your undertakings, cautious and conservative.

You enjoy the arts and find great happiness in the company of intellectually stimulating persons.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): If too eager, you may overreach your mark but, if observing your limitations and maintaining a reasonable pace, you can accomplish a great deal.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Don't look askance at those who disagree with you or express "way out" ideas. On consideration, you may find that they contain gems of wisdom. Overall, a promising day.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Your organizational abilities should not go unnoticed now. Capitalize on past experience and use only the best of pre-tested procedures. Increased prestige indicated.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't be impatient. If barriers, even seemingly insurmountable, seem to obstruct your progress, be content to wait until they are removed. They WILL be!

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Your stars now stimulate your ambitions, perseverance and confidence and, with these, you can rack up a fine total of credits. Do make the most of fine influences.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Especially favored now: the business interests and personal relationships. Display your efficient and amenable side and you can't help but earn rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Avoid tendencies to procrastinate or to work sporadically. Keep eyes on your goal, maintain a steady and reasonable tempo, and step progressively toward it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): You may be called upon to make some weighty decisions. However, this should not daunt the well-developed Sagittarian who, even in the most critical moments, thinks clearly and astutely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): If you missed out on something during the early part of the week and it is still desirable, try for it now. Planetary influences helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Review your plans, methods; note where you can better situations. Eliminate anxiety; supplant with precautions and good management. Work to avoid oversights.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may have to ease up in some respects. But NOT ease out or fade out. A really fine day for accomplishments if you are well organized and maintain an even pace.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great versatility, lofty and idealistic ambitions and remarkable intuition and sensitivity. You are competent and practical in all your undertakings, cautious and conservative.

You enjoy the arts and find great happiness in the company of intellectually stimulating persons.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Local VD Clinicians Treat 16 Patients For Gonorrhea

Five people were discovered to have gonorrhea during the four-month operation of the Venereal Disease clinic at the Pickaway County Health Department, board members learned from the county health nurses at their monthly meeting.

And 11 others received examinations for various forms of VD at the clinic. Seven of the patients were males and nine females. Ages vary from a 55-year-old man to three 17-year-old girls.

The clinic was established by the Board of Health in May in response to a nation-wide outbreak of venereal disease that was reported to be at epidemic proportions.

The statistics released by the health department do not reflect the severity of the problem in the county, board members said, because many local people still attend VD clinics in other counties.

The diseases can usually be eradicated in three weekly visits, they said.

Only two of the many applicants who requested eye glasses under the auspices of the board-sponsored Sight Saver Fund still need financial assistance.

The fund was established several months ago at the suggestion of the health nurses, who were discovering many vision impairments in their routine examinations of school-age children.

The fund, made up of voluntary contributions, was established to aid children termed as "needy."

Five youngsters received complete visual examinations in August and three others have scheduled appointments for vision checks thanks to the generosity of a Board of Health donation to the fund.

In other routine matters, the health nurses referred 10 patients to the Chest Clinic, serviced 57 youngsters at the Prenatal Clinic, 42 children at the Well-Child Clinic, and referred 14 of these youngsters to specialists for more comprehensive exams.

The nurses made 26 home visits this month as hospital or interagency referrals, and visited 26 youngsters as referrals from the Bureau of Crippled Children's Services.

Two positive reactors from the 49 who received TB Skin Tests in August were discovered and treated. Seven other people received inoculations after a case of infectious hepatitis was diagnosed.

In preparation for the opening of county schools next week, 142 children were given immunizations in the department offices.

Health Department personnel were commended for regular inspections of the county landfill by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency,

Indiana Faces Natural Gas Pinch

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There will be enough natural gas this winter to heat homes in Indiana, but an anticipated 27.7 per cent shortage could cause job layoffs, two state energy officials said Wednesday.

William Watt, an aide to Gov. Otis R. Bowen, and Thomas Kibler, head of Indiana's Energy Commission, said 657 plants, schools and hospitals face cutbacks in natural gas supplies and will have to look elsewhere for fuel.

Kibler said the others probably could obtain assurances of other fuels within two days. If they wait too long, however, they will be faced with long waits and increased prices, Kibler said.

Persons who use fuel oil or propane to heat their homes could be faced with upwardly spiraling prices as industry competes for available fuel supplies, Watt and Kibler said.

which completed its report on a solid waste survey for the area.

However, the survey pointed out two problems at the landfill, located off Route 104, that have continually plagued local sanitarians - the need for daily ground cover for the solid waste and the need to better control leachate that seeps into the nearby Scioto River.

Leachate, according to sanitarian Hugh Barnhill, is the result of surface water percolating through the solid waste and creating a liquid by-product that is very contaminating.

The survey also commented on the limited life of the fill, a problem that local personnel have been attempting to deal with for about two years.

Alternative methods suggested by the OEPA, and already studied at length by the Board of Health, include alternative sites, various transfer stations that would serve as collection points for later disposal in approved areas, and recycling equipment.

Significant progress has been made in abetting the leaking of raw sewage into Greenbriar Run near Derby, according to Barnhill, who has worked constantly trying to find sources of the leaks.

Five additional homes in the area have proved to discharge sewage from their septic tanks into the creek.

Persons with faulty systems have been advised to install new tanks, change their leach fields, or install filters.

And a sewage problem near Tarlton is expected to be resolved by Oct. 1, according to a letter received from the Fairfield County Board of Health.

Health Board members were concerned about the septic tank of a property in Fairfield County leaking sewage into a ditch that drains onto property in Pickaway County.

The problem was discovered by local personnel.

Board members can take no further action in attempting to rectify a nuisance complaint lodged against Lawrence Clark, developer of a small apartment complex in the county.

The work was apparently done without the permission of any county agencies concerned with construction or health, and an injunction was issued to vacate the apartments until they can be inspected and problems can be rectified.

However, Mr. Clark apparently cannot be contacted by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department, which is attempting to serve a warrant.

City Health sanitarian R. Thoburn Blaney said that any employees of food service booths at the Pumpkin Show must have a valid food handlers permit, which is issued through the health department.

The next meeting of the board will be Sept. 30 at 8 p.m.

More Bills Are Signed By Rhodes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Auto insurers will be required to offer clients increased protection against uninsured drivers under a bill signed into law by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

The legislation, signed by Rhodes on Wednesday and effective Nov. 28, provides that "uninsured motorists coverage" must be made available in amounts equivalent to the liability insurance a person carries for bodily injury or death.

The old law said $25,000 minimum must be offered for injury or death to two or more persons in a single accident and $12,500 coverage for one person. The bill, sponsored by Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion, eliminates those ceilings.

Rhodes also signed legislation effective Nov. 26:

—Requiring medical personnel to report burn cases to police if the injury resulted from an explosion or an incendiary device, or was inflicted by violence.

—Authorizing county political organizations to fill vacancies for solicitor, auditor, treasurer and council president if the the vacancy occurs while at least one year of the unexpired term remains. Current law requires a special election.

—Authorizing transportation officials to appropriate cemetery land, not containing graves for highway purposes, when such proceedings are begun four years after notifications of a cemetery association.

—Increasing maximum allowable single axle, tandem axle, gross weight and length of trucks and tractor-trailers.

Police Find Stolen Bike

Circleville Police, with the assistance of Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies, recovered a stolen bicycle Wednesday, but are still looking for the man who took it.

Police Sgt. Larry Pontious accompanied Sheriff's Deputies Dan Dewey and Larry Kellenbarger to the Route 3 home of Mrs. Ray Davis to make the recovery after Mrs. Davis found the bike in her garage.

The three-wheeled bicycle, taken from the Riffle Trailer Court home of Milford Buckler Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, was apparently in good condition.

Police suspect that the bike was stolen by Kenneth R. Davis, 34, Route 3, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Davis.

However, when they went to arrest him for grand larceny, he had apparently fled on foot.

Davis remains at large today, Sgt. Pontious said. He was last seen wearing blue jeans and a blue short-sleeved turtle neck sweater.

Mrs. Davis told officers that Kenneth may have ridden the bike to her home, a distance of some four miles.

The bike is valued at $228.

Thieves took another riding lawn-mower, and were again spotted by witnesses but escaped with the mower.

Neighbors told police that they spotted a lone robber loading a riding mower owned by Robert Sells, 219 Cedar Heights Rd., into a pick-up truck 4:20 a.m. Thursday.

The truck and driver fled eastbound on Cedar Heights.

The mower, a Dynamark eight horse-power, is valued at $389.

Police suspect that the bike was stolen by Kenneth R. Davis, 34, Route 3, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Davis.

However, when they went to arrest him for grand larceny, he had apparently fled on foot.

Davis remains at large today, Sgt. Pontious said. He was last seen wearing blue jeans and a blue short-sleeved turtle neck sweater.

Mrs. Davis told officers that Kenneth may have ridden the bike to her home, a distance of some four miles.

The bike is valued at $228.

Thieves took another riding lawn-mower, and were again spotted by witnesses but escaped with the mower.

Neighbors told police that they spotted a lone robber loading a riding mower owned by Robert Sells, 219 Cedar Heights Rd., into a pick-up truck 4:20 a.m. Thursday.

The truck and driver fled eastbound on Cedar Heights.

The mower, a Dynamark eight horse-power, is valued at $389.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A high pressure system over western Pennsylvania brought clear weather over Ohio last night. At daybreak temperatures had dropped into the 50s in northern counties. The coolest spot was Youngstown where the mercury stood at 54 degrees. In extreme southern Ohio temperatures were in the mid 60s.

The high pressure system was drifting east and expected to reach New England by Friday morning. A low pressure system forming east of the Rockies this morning will progress east into the central Plains states tonight and Friday.

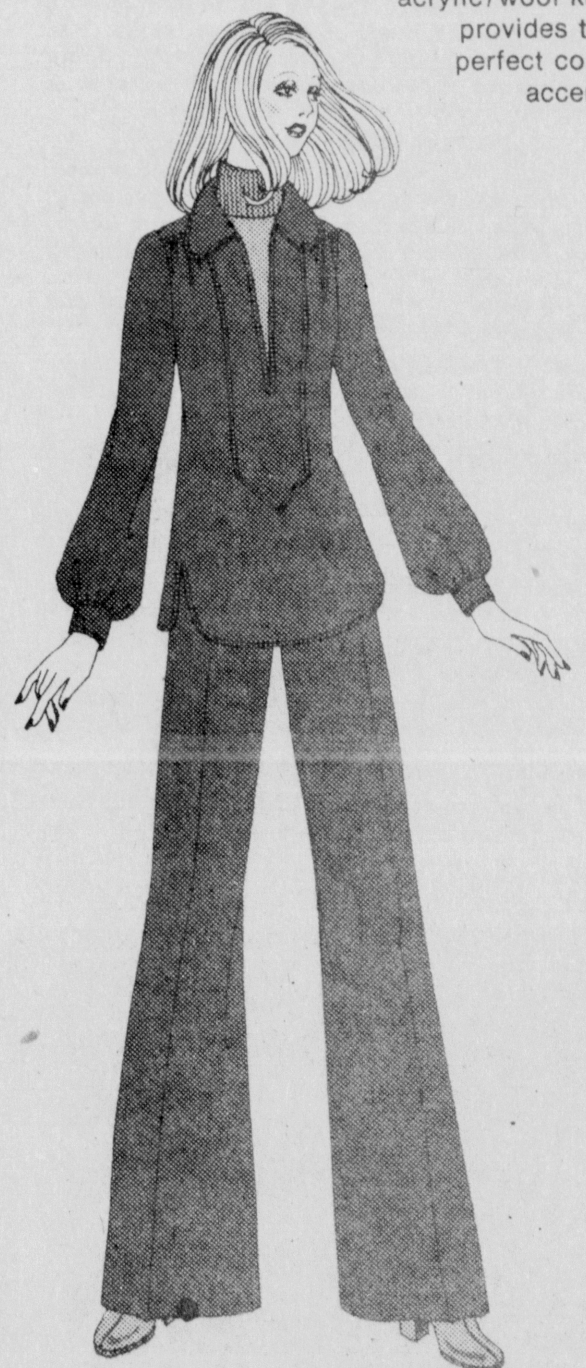

There is a chance of a few showers or thundershowers spreading into western Ohio tonight and over the state Friday. A slow warming trend was expected to bring temperatures in the 80s this afternoon. Readings tonight were expected to be a little higher than Wednesday night with readings in the 60s north the low 70s south.
